Romulus teachers strike; 'no contract, no work'

By KAY DeBORD
Roman Staff Writer

Pickets appeared at the Romulus Board of Education offices yesterday morning following an early morning meeting called by the Romulus Education Association (REA) for the purpose of taking a strike vote.

The teachers unanimously voted to withhold services until a contract agreement had been reached.

"No contract, no work," said Peg Ross, president of the REA.

"We have no talks scheduled at this time, and we're waiting until the board contacts us before we negotiate."

THE TEACHERS are to set up a strike headquarters today.

Negotiations had resumed Sunday between members of the REA and Romulus Board of Education representatives but ended in an impasse on the subject of salaries and fringe benefits.

"We offered a pay increase of $382.50 for beginning teachers," according to Assistant Supt. James M. Garfield, "and raises up to $1,500 for teachers with more seniority."

"We're a little surprised they (the REA) turned it down," he added.

Garfield said that he felt that 99 per cent of the non-economic issues had been settled by the Sunday meeting "at least in concept."

Salaries and fringe benefits are the issues still to be resolved, according to Garfield.

The week has been filled with charge and countercharges of who did or did not ask for mediation and which side sought meetings to negotiate.

Dave Ferdon, negotiator for the teacher association, earlier had claimed that the Salaries and fringe benefits are the issues still to be resolved.

Romulus board and its negotiators had discouraged effective negotiations until August and claimed that the board was waiting for final state aid to be set.

Earlier, following negotiating sessions, the REA issued a news release stating a number of charges against the school board, including that the board was following the outline set up by Wayne County Task Force 36, a coalition of Wayne County school boards.

Ferdon charged that the "task force" had been organized "for the apparent purpose of maiming job security it had taken the teachers eight years to gain in negotiations."

The REA also had charged the board with rejection of REA proposals that included staff involvement in curriculum planning and protection for probationary teachers.

The administration denied any involvement with "task force" guidelines for negotiating and reiterated its willingness to continue with the meetings until the stalemate was resolved.

School opens as scheduled in Huron Public School District

Barring any last minute changes, school will open on schedule today in the Huron School District - as teachers and school board bargaining representatives continue contract talks.

Huron teachers reported for yesterday's orientation sessions. The teachers are being represented in the talks with the district by the Huron Education Association.

AND WHEN students return to classes today, they'll witness "more improvements than in any one previous year."

School Supt. Byron K. Antcliff said the Huron School Board and administrative staff "are hopeful that every parent and student will find their respective schools the most worthwhile they have ever had."

At the same time he said the system was fortunate to attain "some of the best teachers in the profession" to join the Huron system. Twelve new teachers have been added to the system's faculty.

IMPROVEMENTS IN the elementary program will include smaller class size, more books, supplies, equipment, and an improved reading program and a new reporting system.

The junior high school program will have a greater variety of curriculum offerings, home economics, reading improvement, art, industrial art, speech and drama, physical education, drafting and business education.

Other improvements will include more supplies and equipment, smaller class sizes and an improvement of basic classes as a result of staff development and an improved reporting system.

High school improvements include expansion to a six class day, more supplies and equipment, new books and several new vocational programs have been added including health occupations and small engine repair.

Drug abuse can create tragedy of human waste

The tragedy of drug abuse in the eyes of Len Melnick, the newly appointed director of the Romulus Help Center, is the human waste it creates.

"It takes intelligence to hustle in the drug sub-world, and survive," Melnick said. "If we could only challenge the drug abuser to use his intelligence for the benefit of society, rather than to its detriment, we'd be far ahead."

Already, 30 Romulus residents are in a methadone maintenance program at the Inkster Hegira drug treatment center, and Kelsey Hayes has indicated that it can name 20 people in need of help.

MELNICK would like to take a shot at channeling the intelligence these 50 use to "hustle" for drugs into other areas with the program of drug abuse treatment and crisis intervention he is developing with Stephanie Lewkowicz, his secretary-receptionist.

Miss Lewkowicz is a former volunteer worker who is giving Melnick background on the help center necessary for developing a program.

"IT'S MY IDEA that we must help these people develop other interests and skills, so that drugs become a worthless part of the individual's life, when compared to the accomplishments he can attain through working constructively in society."

The former director of the Berkshire County, Mass., drug abuse and treatment program, and a former officer in the U.S. Public Health Service, Melnick believes his treatment can best be implemented by a three-part program he is developing. His plans include a methadone detoxification program for heroin addicts, a counseling program and a crisis intervention program.

HE EXPLAINS: "The methadone detoxification program is designed to help the heroin addict reduce his habit to nothing over a 21-day period."

"I can't emphasize enough, that this is not a maintenance program, but a program designed to help the addict overcome the pain of direct withdrawal from heroin."

"In the end, after the 21-day period, the addict will be free of all drug dependencies, and ready to enter our second stage of treatment—the counseling program."

"Actually, the counseling of the addict begins soon after he enters the detoxification program, with trained counselors seeking the individual's reasons for abusing drugs."

"If we find the reason, either psychological or physiological, we can then proceed with the treatment, hopefully solving the problems which caused the individual to get involved in the first place."

IT'S THE individual treatment program which Melnick favors.

"We suit the treatment

Because of political controversy

Second administrator resigns post

By JIM CARRAVALLAH
Roman Staff Writer

A second man has resigned his administrative post in Romulus.

William Pritula, director of the Romulus Department of Public Works has made his resignation effective Sept. 28. He follows Director of the Romulus Building Department Clayton W. Meldrum, who resigned last week in a political controversy.

MELDRUM'S WIFE works for Terry L. Trout, who is running against Romulus Mayor Hyle Carmichael for the post in the November general election.

Pritula would give no reason for his resignation, said: "I wasn't asked to resign in so many words, but I can say, politics is rotten."

"I don't want to talk about it now, but I will after it's effective, Sept. 28."

Pritula is the second administrator who was placed on the "chopping block" by the slate for "Integrity and Quality in Romulus Government" (IQ) being run by Carmichael, according to reports.

THE ROMULUS Roman has learned that the "steering committee" of the IQ slate demanded both Meldrum's and Pritula's resignations, allegedly because neither was directing his department in an orderly fashion.

Pritula has been in line for firing since last year, when he ordered a dirt road maintained by crews of the Department of Public Works under instruction of the Romulus City Council, according to a spokesman.

Carmichael was opposed to maintaining the street, after learning it was a private thoroughfare, and not dedicated to the city as a public way.

Carmichael's personal attorney, William Moshier, filed suit on the matter, claiming that the city was remiss in maintaining a private road. However, Moshier's action was not directly in behalf of the mayor.

The sort of blackjack fired from the new weapon, which will knock a man down and stun him without killing him, will soon be used by a select group of Wayne County sheriff's deputies.

The funds appropriated will finance the use of the weapon for a three-week period. If the testing is successful, deputies will begin carrying them on a six-month trial basis.

The new weapon is available in sizes ranging from nine inches long to the length of a shotgun. One model can be used as a combination nightstick and firearm.

Sheriff William Lucas said the new stinger stick has been used in law enforcement only once, in a small town.

He added that the new weapon also could be useful in crowd control.

The weapon cost less than $100 apiece and Lucas said that his department will start its experimental use with six.

He'd hit ports of call along his journeys, and would seek out schools, orphanages and other places where children could be found, to entertain.

"There's nothing better in the world than a kid laughing," he said. "I love it, and when I can take some kid's mind off the lousy problems they have to deal with today, I'm happier than ever."

"I figure by me taking the time, I've made their life a little better."

BUT, AS IN EVERY clown's life, there's a little tragedy. Leone's happened overseas.

He's Coco

Custodian likes to clown

By JIM CARRAVALLAH
Roman Staff Writer

There's a bit of the ham in all of us—and in some there's a bit of clown.

For Guy Leone, the afternoon custodian at the Romulus Civic Center, the two are combined into his alter-ego, Coco the Clown.

"I've always enjoyed entertaining," explained Leone, 28. "Back in high school I played the lead role in 27 plays, and really liked it."

"BUT, INSTEAD of going on to school, studying drama, I wanted to join the service."

It was in 1962, while in the Navy, that Leone got his first taste of clown work.

"I was a bosun mate in the navy, on a ship which was taking a group of Vietnamese kids badly injured by the war, to Subic Bay in the Philippines," he said "they were really torn up, and it bothered me, especially because they were kids, so I tried to talk to them, but they were afraid."

"I'd try to joke and play with them, and to tell them stories, but they'd shy away, afraid of an American."

"SO I WENT OUT and got a mop, and put it on my head, put shoe polish on my face and reddened my nose, and went back to talk with them."

"They loved it, and I became Coco."

Coco is the name the Vietnamese children gave to Leone, because they couldn't pronounce clown.

By the time the ship reached the Philippine hospital where the children would receive treatment, the children were friends with their "Coco," eagerly awaiting his arrival each evening.

BUT, THE TIME came when Coco had to return to the coast of Vietnam.

"By then, they were used to me without my make-up, and I could go into their rooms and talk to them," Leone said.

"That last day, I was going around to say goodbye to each one, and one little guy didn't want me to leave."

"I messed up my hair, put on one of the nurse's make-up and came back to tell some jokes and some stories."

"It was hard for me, but the kids really enjoyed it, and when I left it

Staff plans schedule

Library offers program throughout year

By JIM CARAVALLAH
Enterprise-Roman
Staff Writer

With its summer reading program at an end, the Romulus Public Library does not lack events for the community in the future.

Schedules for the school-year library program are partially drawn up, and special programs are taking shape right now.

Starting Oct. 11, the library's preschool story-hour will get underway. On Oct. 12, the first "Family Movie Night" will be held and on Oct. 13, the first of the Saturday "Children's Programs" will be held at the library.

REGISTRATIONS for the pre-school program will start in mid-September, according to librarian Diane Hazen. Parents interested in sending their children to one of the two half-hour sessions to be held each Thursday from Oct. 11 through Dec. 13 should contact Mrs. Hazen to make arrangements. There is no fee for the program.

Classes will be held at 10:30 a.m. and at 1:30 p.m. each Thursday.

Children between three and five years of age are invited to attend the classes, which will feature stories, games and songs taught by the library staff.

"It's a chance for the children to become acquainted with a school-type situation," Mrs. Hazen said. "But, we want the parents in the library during the half-hour session, not with the children, but nearby."

ACCORDING TO the librarian, the classes benefit the children by putting them in the class-room situation, and benefit the parents by giving them a half-hour to peruse the books of the library.

The first family movie night feature, starting at 7:30 p.m., Oct. 12, will be "Miss Goodall and the Wild Chimpanzees," a National Geographic Film.

There is no admission to the movie and all the family members are welcome to attend.

The Oct. 13 children's program has not been announced yet, but the date is set aside for a program involving either crafts demonstrations or movies.

AS A HELP for Christmas shoppers, the library will be offering a program sometime in November for adults with suggestions on children's books which are ideal for Christmas presents.

"Parents often wonder what to get a child for the holidays," Mrs. Hazen said, "and naturally, we think books are ideal."

"We'll try to show adults the books available, and will try to give them advice on picking out good children's literature which will not only entertain the child, but also will help the child grow educationally."

In addition to the structured programs during the school season, the library will be the site of many displays of interest to area residents.

"WE TRY to make our displays both interesting and informative," explained the librarian. "Right now, we have a 13-year-old boy's display on the Civil War in our cabinet."

"We're also making arrangements for a model airplane display in October."

The library always is looking for more to offer its patrons, particularly in the area of displays, she added.

SHOULD RESIDENTS have something to offer their neighbors, they are asked to contact either Mrs. Hazen or her assistant, Valerie Tanner, at 941-0775.

Art displays are welcomed, but there is a prohibition by the library against selling artworks on the premises.

"If a budding artist wants to put on a one-man show, and wants to leave his address or phone number on the work for someone to contact him, that's alright," Mrs. Hazen said. "But we don't want artists bringing their works here with price tags to offer them for sale."

SIGN OF PARTICIPATION — One of the signs of interest in the Romulus Library's programs during the year is the participation of children. Here, children from the library's summer reading program line up to show their costumes as part of the program's final meeting. Nearly 50 children attended the last meeting of the program, which featured awards for each child's reading work during the summer. Some of the children involved read 80 books during the summer — Enterprise-Roman photo.

Huron Junior High expands courses

The curriculum offerings at the Huron Junior High School in New Boston will be expanded this year, according to School Supt. Byron Antcliff.

Added to the curriculum for the new school year will be the following subjects: business education with typing instruction, industrial art, home economics, speech and drama, drafting, reading improvement.

These subjects are electives. Boys' and girls' physical education also was placed on an elective list.

Last school year, the classes offered at the junior high school was confined to mathematics, social studies, English and science along with boys' and girls' physical education as a requirement. Band also was offered as it will be this year.

"These basic subjects still must be taken by students as requirements," Antcliff said. "There will be six periods in the day instead of five the school district had last year."

PLANNING ACTION—The two full-time workers at Romulus' Help and Job Placement Center Stephanie Lewkowicz and Len Melnick, director, plan a new course of action for drug treatment, counseling and crisis intervention. —Romulus Roman photo.

program to the person," he said. "We don't force the person into the treatment process."

Every addict has a different story—a different reason for addiction—so every treatment will have to vary with the situation.

Melnick's search for a reason for addiction points to the key to his philosophy of drug abuse—the drug abuse or use is a symptom of a greater problem which must be treated first.

THE ROMULUS Help Center, according to Melnick, will not be in the business of "drying out" addicts so they can return to their habits with needs for lesser dosages, but will attempt to correct the problem permanently.

"That's why we don't enter the methadone maintenance program," Melnick explained. "Methadone maintenance is the process of giving methadone to the heroin addict as a substitute for the heroin."

"There's no attempt to ever get the addict off drugs—methadone is an addictive drug, but only to maintain the habit in a different form."

"To me, the maintenance program substitutes one crutch for another, without ever exploring the reason for the crutch in the first place."

"IT'S GIVING up on the individual himself—saying 'We know you can't cope with life on your own, so we'll allow you to do it on drugs which we consider less dangerous than the one you're using.'"

"It's self defeating, if you're trying to help people." Helping people is the goal of the help center.

"We want to put these people back into society, as constructive members," Melnick said.

TREATMENT will not only consist of help in withdrawal from drugs, and counseling on means to avoid using drugs, but also will consist of helping the addict find a new life—a constructive life in society.

"We'll engage in education, in crafts training, in job counseling, in a myriad of services, so long as we can help the individual," Melnick said.

"We may not have all the services available at the center now, but we'll be able to direct the individual to the service he most needs."

As part of the preparation program, Melnick, and his office assistant Stephanie Lewkowicz, are researching sources of available help, through social service agencies, job placement agencies and government bodies.

"WE WANT to have a full offering of programs available, so when we're in operation, we'll be able to provide full service."

Plans are being made to hire full-time and part-time staff members, who will administer drugs and offer medical treatment, who will engage in counseling and crisis counseling and who will enter the community, in an effort to seek out those in need of help and direct them to the center.

"We're convinced that as soon as we open for regular business, we'll have cases," Melnick said. "That's been my experience in the past, but we'll be able to do a better job of reaching the community by having people who will go out and find those in need of help."

No timetable has been set for opening the help center yet. Right now the center is in the process of seeking funds from Romulus to match a $91,000 grant to the center from the federal government.

The center is seeking approximately $22,000 from the city, including $17,000 in cash and another $5,000 in goods and services, and will be looking for $8,000 in donations from the business community and civic groups.

Contract okayed

Approval of a contract between the Romulus Board of Education and a Bloomfield Hills architectural firm for building plans of the schools okayd by voters in June was among action taken at the last meeting of the board.

The contract between the school district and the architectural firm of Charles Sherman Associates was made possible by voter approval of a more than $11 million dollar bond proposal.

The board also approved and gave top priority to the recommendation of the site committee to construct the first new elementary school on property already owned by the school district on Wick Road west of Wayne Road.

The site committee is one of the various committees set up to work in an advisory capacity, and is composed of Romulus citizens, administrators, teachers and school board members working on the school building program.

"I'd not only entertained kids, but also would get together with five other guys I'd met—all in the special forces," he said. "We put together an act, and we'd sing in bars for drinks. We had plans to get together after we got out, to try to make it professionally. But I was the only one to return."

Maybe it was the loss of his friends which changed his mind about entertainment—or maybe it was the lure of home—but when 1966 came, and Leone was discharged, he raced for home—ready to settle down.

"I had an offer to go to school back in Rhode Island at the time," he explained. "I was doing illustrations for the author Robert Norman Ford, who wrote 'The Black, Grey and Gold,' a story about John Steinbeck at West Point."

"FOR A FAMOUS author, Mr. Ford was alright, and I guess he thought I did good work, because he wanted to send me school."

"But, when the time came to leave the Navy, I chose to go home."

It wasn't much later, in 1967, when he married his wife, Karen. The couple's first child, Jack, was born a year later. Ernie, 4, Mary Josephine, 3, Gaetane, Jr., 2 and Jason, four-months, followed.

"I got wrapped up in my family," Leone said. "I love kids."

"I ALWAYS wanted to have a family of my own because, when I saw the kids overseas, I wished I could take each one home with me."

"I'm just goofy over kids," Leone has been lost in his family, a contented husband and father.

then," he explained, "but then, that even tapered off."

"I'm really enjoying my kids now."

BUT SOMEONE needed recently, and Leone was available.

"I was in the library, and Diane Hazen, the librarian, had a problem, because she needed a clown for the summer reading program party," he explained.

"You got one," I told her, and I had my sister, Francine Leone, make me a costume, and I did the clown again," he said. "It was great."

"I had a lot of fun, and the kids enjoyed it."

"IT'D REALLY be great to do it professionally, but I'm just a plain man, who wants a little out of life, and wants to spend time with his kids, so that probably isn't possible." Leone is now employed as a custodian in Romulus, a job he's held since December.

He has plans for the future, possibly night school when he gets off afternoons, but he'll always have the dream.

"Everyone has to have a goal in life, I guess," he said.

Against Troutt team

Mayor files suit for $100,000

A $100,000 libel suit has been filed against a member of the Troutt team and what is believed to be a team publication for injury to the "good name, fame and credit" of Romulus Mayor Hyle J. Carmichael.

Carmichael's attorney, B. B. Moshier, has filed the suit in Wayne County Circuit Court against Gary Bingamen, Troutt team candidate for city clerk in the Nov. 6 general election, and the "Romulus News."

In the suit, Moshier demands damages for articles printed in the "Romulus News" prior to the Aug. 7 primary election, which charged Carmichael with "covering up" a state audit of the city's books and which charged the mayor with "living it up" on city funds.

ONE OF THE articles was written by Bingamen. The other, charging the mayor with covering up the audit, was written by Joe Fair. Fair was not mentioned in the suit.

The suit charges: "Defendant, Gary Bingamen, maliciously contrived to injure plaintiff (Carmichael) in his good name, fame and credit and to bring him to public scandal and disgrace and cause to be believed that he as mayor had been guilty of fraud and dishonesty, of cheating and of imposing upon public funds of the City of Romulus, all for the purpose of damaging plaintiff in his said employment as mayor and his future as a public servant."

and to that end, did maliciously and falsely write and cause to be published various and sundry statements in the pamphlet known as "Romulus News."

Although the ownership of the Romulus News isn't recorded at the Wayne County Clerk's office, Carmichael believes it was published by the Troutt team, lead by mayor candidate Terry Troutt. It was distributed by members of the team and their workers, he said.

"This is the most flagrant example of yellow journalism I have seen," said Carmichael in filing the suit. "THE WHOLE STORY in Troutt's tabloid was nothing more than a conglomerate of clever words strung together by a slick writer."

"Actually, the State of Michigan did not accuse anyone of anything. No legal instruments were served on me or anyone in my administration."

"Ironically, shortly after the completion of the audit, a member of the state agency performing the audit complimented my administration and for its efficiency and for its frugal spending practices."

Although the state audit charged that more than $808,000 was spent without specific approval of the Romulus City Council during the city's first year of operation, it did not find any shortage of city funds.

"WHATEVER ERRORS were made, they were honest ones and reflected what can happen when a new administration attempts to run a city government under a complete new set of rules and provisions."

The Romulus Roman was unable to contact Bingamen concerning the suit.

'It's all politics'

Administrators resign

Moshier's contention.

Pritula got into more trouble earlier this spring, when he maintained an alley behind the former Romulus Township Hall on orders of the Romulus City Council.

Again, Carmichael was upset, because the alley was private half owned by a store backing up to the old township hall.

It was shortly after the alley was maintained when a source inside Romulus City Hall indicated Pritula would be fired.

CARMICHAEL denies that the resignations were "political in nature."

"I could not see the wisdom of making political footballs out of these two voluntary resignations, with a lot of publicity," he said. "Coming as they did in the heat of an election is purely coincidence."

Carmichael continued: "I cannot understand how anyone could construe Meldrum's voluntary resignation and his own admission of accepting new employment as amounting to political pressure applied by me."

"I'm sorry that this situation occurred at this particular time, because, until both men issued statements to the press, I had remained silent."

"I DID SO because I felt honor-bound not to discuss confidential details of their resignations with anyone." Meldrum is off the building department job now, working as a foreman in maintenance for the Romulus School District.

When contacted about his resignation last week,

Meldrum said, "I would rather not go into this."

"My wife felt her rights had been severed and talked to the newspapers, but I did give a resignation with regrets."

"ALL I WANTED to do was work with the people of the community, and now I'll have that opportunity (with the school district)."

Meldrum said the resignation had been rendered when he learned that a replacement had been hired for him. Carmichael had confirmed the fact to him.

Pritula said he has no job lined up at this time. "I can't talk much about this now," he said. "But I will say, it's all politics."

People petition for pool

If a group of Romulus residents have their way, Romulus will have an indoor community swimming pool at Romulus High School.

The residents, who have titled themselves the Pool Planning Committee, are out to get one thousand signatures on petitions by Sept. 10.

If enough signatures are obtained, the committee will attempt to get the proposal on the January millage renewal election ballot.

Committee members, headed by Jean Haubrich, chairman, feel that the pool would not only be an asset for residents of all ages and financial status, but would also allow Romulus students to compete in swimming meets with other area schools and round out the district's athletic program.

Backers of the proposed pool include Jason Lovette, president of the Romulus Rotary Club and immediate past president of the Romulus School Board; Mike Pollack, Romulus Jaycee president; Gary Canajo, president of the Romulus Kiwanis; Bill Smith, director of the Romulus Adult Education program, and Doug Baum, Romulus Rotarian and businessman.

The committee estimates that cost of the pool at present rates would be an extra $8 per year to Romulus taxpayers for up to 25 years.

A heart to live with...

The 'tether' is gone

By DON HOENSHELL
Lansing Bureau Chief
(Last of a 5-part series)

CLEVELAND — Nurse Barbara Gorbeck scrounged a Norelco electric shaver with the special sideburn attachment and a comb to help with their first step back into reality. "Do you comb it back over the ears like this?" she asked. "No, straight down the sides — like snoods for the sideburns."

Oh.

THAT WAS FOR the morale after a day of being awakened every two hours to breathe into the Bennett machine. Even now, with tubes and monitors and ennu, the unease was small against the years ahead.

Other things were going on, the regular checks, the measure of the intervenous fluids, tests of all the appropriate kinds and, blessedly, a baby spoon of crushed ice every hour or so.

And there was conversation, one way because in the early hours the tubes cut off talking. The nurses kept me informed of all I needed to know, maybe more.

Every hour Larry Morrow came down the center aisle pushing a Bennett machine. Blow into it, through a plastic mouthpiece, for 10 minutes, then cough from the bottom to clear the lungs while Larry pounds the back with cupped hands.

IT WAS TO clear the gunk from the lungs, a condition caused by the anesthetic and, presumably, the hours of inactivity that they are collapsed. Thus it was that Larry and I developed a pattern.

"I have labored mightily and have brought forth three hunks of gunk," I would state as haughtily as one can under the circumstances.

"You, sir, are quoting Shakespear," he would answer, and everybody without a tube in the way would laugh.

At other times it was possible to fall desperately to sleep for what could have been eight hours, then find upon awakening that the clock on the far wall had moved only five minutes.

'Medicine is less and less romantic and more and more mathematical...'

There was the first food — broth, jello and tea — and the rediscovery of other people, as troubled and as hopeful as yourself. It was the start of a re-humanizing process.

"THIS GUY HAS to be watched like a hawk," said Dr. Paul Taylor as aides wheeled in another patient.

"We routinely watch them all like a hawk," said another doctor.

It was the routine of the Cleveland Clinic, the highly structured and precise verification of life and the talent of man to extend and fulfill it. And it brought alive the statement of Dr. Rene J. Favalaro, who performed the first bypass operation at Cleveland.

"Medicine is less and less romantic and more and more mathematical..."

AND MEDICINE'S emotionless precision takes over everything, the living and the breathing and the sleeping. Machines and sensors monitor what's happening and doctors and nurses are instantly there to double check.

"It's not at all unusual to lose track of what time it is, what day it is or what in the world am I doing here," said Nurse Jil Geitz in the pre-op briefing.

After two to three days in intensive care, it's off to a nursing unit (the first step is into the wheelchair) where the food is more solid and where the re-entry process picks up pace.

In the second stage, there can be one visitor a day — from 6:30 to 7 p.m. — and all the Cleveland newspapers you can read.

THAT FIRST STROLL down the corridor the third day after surgery raises the image of a drunk following the curb home at 4 a.m. It gets easier and the distances get shorter.

Recovery gets faster from this point as the body gradually goes back on its own.

The process takes another step a week later with the final move back to 4A-33 in the Clinic Inn, where it all started with the check-in.

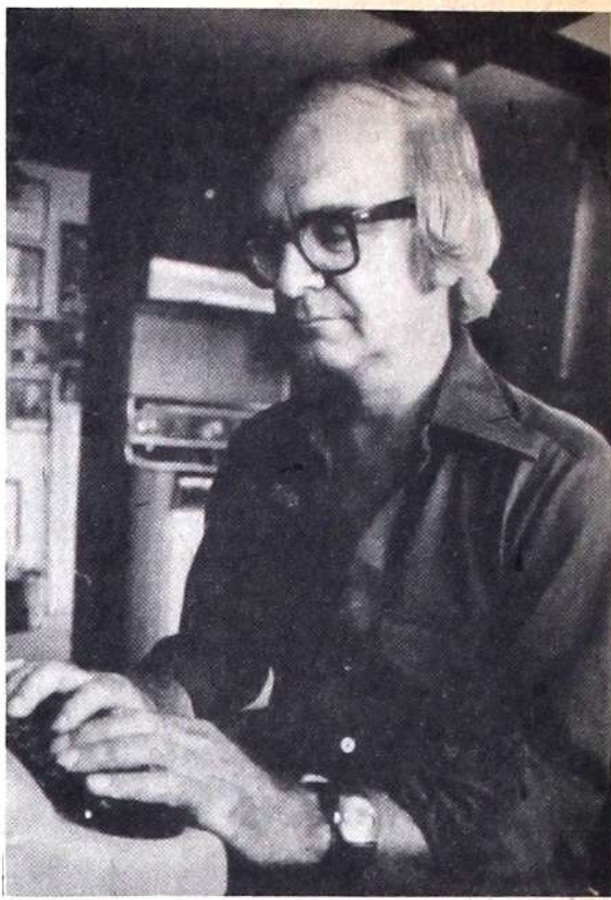

It is here that the clock and the calendar come back — the discharge date is certain now, a telephone is at hand, television is still showing Watergate, the buddies in the Zipper Patrol are antsy.

Max X, a 48-year-old Toronto builder, notices the pain is gone from his left arm for the first time in years. He wants to go back to his office and make another million dollars.

George Y., a commercial pilot from Indiana, wants his job back. A routine electrocardiograph in his annual physical showed a blip and he was grounded until he could be cleared by Cleveland.

SO MAX WENT back to Toronto to make another million and George went back to his airplanes ("The doctors said a number of pilots got their tickets back this way...").

The stitches come out the night before the plane leaves and the symbolism is unmistakable — the tether is gone...

BACK TO WORK — Veteran Panax political writer Don Hoenshell is back on the scene he loves best—covering the turbulent state capital beat for Daily Eagle readers.

A tactless course

MEA policy hurts the teacher's image

Panax newspapers will refuse any future School Bell Awards from the Michigan Education Association as a matter of journalistic integrity.

The policy was adopted following the conversion of the MEA from an educational service organization to a teacher union.

Until 1965, the MEA was dedicated to elevating the professional stature of its teacher-members and improving the quality of education of the young.

At that time, the Hutchinson Act - which still prohibits strikes by public employees - was changed to allow exclusive bargaining agents to represent government workers at all local levels.

The MEA won the ensuing scramble to represent all but the teachers in Detroit and a handful of other districts.

Strident MEA spokesmen insist that educational professionalism remains, that labor negotiations constitute merely another service to the teachers.

But clearly something has suffered. The MEA cannot do a good job for the profession it formerly served, nor can it excel as the teacher union it has become.

Panax President John P. McGoff wrote in his letter to the MEA that the MEA has "involved itself improperly in political activities of questionable justification on all levels of government to serve its own ends" and added:

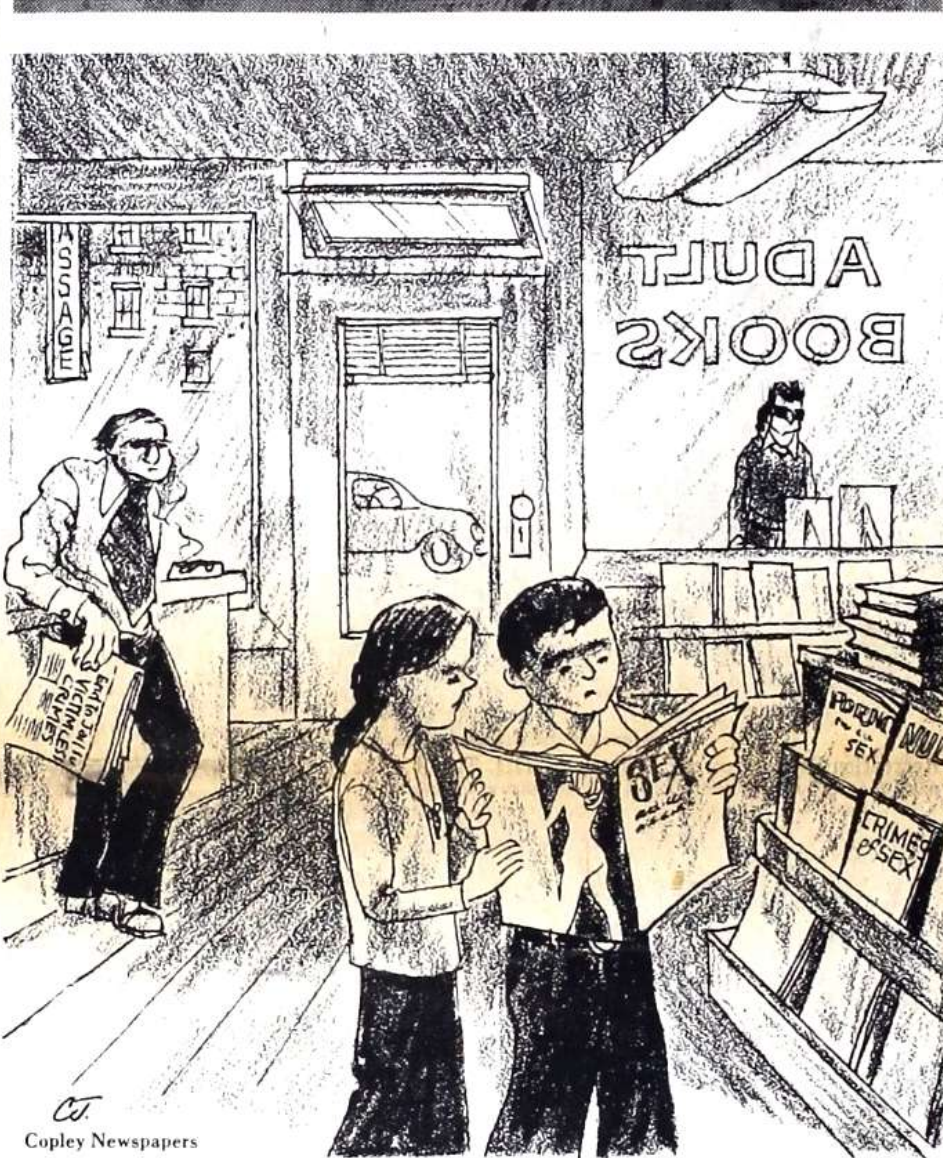

"We believe that the integrity and fairness of our newspapers can be better judged by our readers without the implication that we endorse MEA activities by competing for and accepting the award of the School Bell."

The MEA has abandoned the high professional purposes for which it was founded and has adopted an adversary relationship to the community and tactics harmful to education, the public and to the profession.

We shall continue to report and publish educational news in all of our newspapers of the same high quality that has won many School Bell awards in the past.

We shall continue to serve our readers, not the MEA.

VICTIMLESS CRIMES?

Mitch's Niche

Faith in God gives purpose and meaning

By MITCH KEHETIAN

How does one judge 50 years of service to God, people and community...

Last month the answer unfolded at St. Mary's Church in Wayne, when parish members marked the church's golden anniversary.

And it all started nearly 2,000 years ago with the birth of a child they called Jesus... and who was later to become known to a troubled world as Christ - the son of God.

IN RECENT YEARS the pessimists would have you believe that God is dead, that codes of morality are for the weak - that honesty and integrity is outdated in this new era.

And then we've heard others falsely preach the church is dying. If anyone is dying, it is man, and he dies a little each day... by his own deeds of greed.

The first St. Mary's Church was built in 1893 - and stood on the present location of the church's activities building.

Then some years later, Aug. 26, 1923 to be exact... the cornerstone was laid for the present St. Mary's and was enlarged to its present form in 1955.

A religious structure lives when the men, women and children of a community practice their credo on a daily diet.

WHETHER SOME of us are around for present St. Mary's 100th anniversary is of little importance; and if we were, we'd find the parish of 2,023 a.d. an active believing assembly.

When one loses faith in God, his church and his country - life becomes hollow and fruitless. Just ask those who live in Godless societies.

In my recent travels I've been afforded the opportunity to view majestic Mt. Ararat in old Armenia, the Biblical mountain when the Scriptures tell us Noah's Ark came to rest - and the Vatican in Rome.

ONE NEED NOT travel to these distant holy places to capture redemption, but if you did... you'd return with a renewed faith that life is a gift and should be exercised to the fullest.

That feeling of sharing life took place at St. Mary's Church last month when 50 years of service to God, people and community was observed.

A passage from the Jaycee Creed best depicts the beauty of faith: "That faith in God gives meaning and purpose to human life..."

On the auto front

Good News report

When more than 3,000 men women hear of a pending two month... despair sets in—but not at Wayne's Ford Assembly Plant.

Starting mid-December... and assembly plant will convert to a compact-sized car facility... and instead of standard sized cars rolling off the line—compact Mavericks will hum off the final line.

Ford's switch to increase small car production will mean competition for the growing small-car economy market.

And that means job security for Ford's Wayne Assembly Plant employees.

The majority of those employees who face a mini lay-off during the plant conversion, will receive up to 90 per cent of their regular weekly wages—while others will be transferred to Ford's Rouge facility.

And once the plant is in full operation for compact car production, the work force will be back at full strength—producing cars... and that's good for the nation's economy.

At the same time we look with optimism at the continuing UAW-Chrysler talks in hopes a strike can be averted before the strike target date (Sept. 14) arrives.

The best shot-in-the-arm to the American economy this fall will be peace on the auto front—what better way to celebrate the observance of Labor Day Week.

To the working men and women of Western Wayne County, we salute you for helping make this free enterprise nation of ours the envy of all "isms."

Dems and GOP work for reform

Strive to restore faith in government

LANSING — Organization politicians of both major parties are pulling the wagons in a circle to protect themselves from the people.

They are marching together toward reform of the election process to make it believable again.

That was the subliminal inspiration for a remarkable arm-linking by Democratic State Chairman Morley Winograd and Republican State Chairman William F. McLaughlin to push a six-point package.

It was drafted at the highest levels of the parties, a 16-member Republican delegation and a leadership group from the Democrats, negotiating and proposing under the Belle Isle bridge at midnight.

DEMOCRATS AT least reached agreement without troubling structured party sub-echelons working on the same project. Republicans have more discipline and don't have that problem on policy matters.

The real fear is that political parties have deteriorated into election mechanisms for photogenic and articulate personalities from the thundering philosophical instruments of the past.

Almost unmentioned, but hovering over the Winograd-McLaughlin meeting were such things as Watergate, public cynicism toward all political people and the decline of the parties.

McLaughlin touched on it:

"I would think also that neither one of us wants to be caught up in an overreaction to Watergate which is going on in a lot of places and is liable to put the political parties out of business."

WATERGATE, OF COURSE, is going to hurt both parties and the answer in Michigan is reform.

A special Senate committee of bipartisan flavor is working on ethics, including election campaign spending reform.

Gov. William G. Milliken has issued a Code of Ethics for state employees and officials, has appointed a Board of Ethics and now wants to give it statutory status.

Now come McLaughlin and Winograd with proposals for an appointive board of education, for a closed primary, voter registration at license plate offices, increased voting machines to reduce jamups, and some change in the election of Supreme Court justices.

McLaughlin wants appointment of the justices and Winograd some form of election. They plan to put both ideas on the ballot to let the voters decide.

IN SHORT POLITICAL honesty and ethics, reform and order are all very in this year.

Winograd said the big news was that the two parties were cooperating and got agreement from McLaughlin and from former Democratic

Alex Solzhenitsyn lives a life of fear

Editor's Note—The following dispatch on Nobel Prize writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn is must reading for readers of The Enterprise-Roman—through the courtesy of the Associated Press.

By FRANK CREPEAU

MOSCOW (AP) — Nobel Prize novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn, in a rare and bluntly outspoken interview with two Western newsmen, says his life has been threatened. He says that, if he is imprisoned or killed, "the main part of my works will be published."

The world-celebrated author, whose works are banned in the Soviet Union, said he and his family have received warnings and "if I am declared killed or suddenly mysteriously dead," the world could conclude that "I have been killed with the approval of the KGB or by it."

The KGB is the Soviet security police organization.

SOLZHENITSYN, 54, is the author of such famed novels as "The First Circle," "Cancer Ward" and "August 1914." He won the 1970 Nobel Prize for literature, but authorities prevented him from receiving it in his homeland.

'...the world could conclude that I have been killed with the approval of the KGB or by it.'

The bearded writer, dressed in an open-necked shirt and slacks, was friendly and animated as he discussed developments that have convinced him the cause of individual freedom in the Soviet Union is at a low ebb.

SOME OTHER MAIN points of Solzhenitsyn's statements:

—What he calls "the main part of my works" is as yet unpublished.

—He will continue publishing his books in the West. Now that the Soviet Union has signed the international copyright convention, he also will give his works to "samizdat," the clandestine "self-publishing" system used by Soviet dissenters.

—He will further defy officialdom by moving to Moscow to live this winter, despite denial of a permit.

—He wanted particularly to speak out in defense of the noted physicist, Andrei D. Sakharov, a prominent Soviet champion of human rights, because he is convinced the increased harassment of Sakharov and others shows the situation is "at a nadir."

—Any trial of dissidents Pyotr Yakir and Viktor Krassin will be a "doleful repetition" of the Stalin purge trials of the 1930s. He feels that if Yakir and Krassin agreed to turn state's evidence, as reported, they have conducted themselves "basely."

"BUT I MUST say that my death will not make happy those people who count on it to stop my literary activities. Immediately after my death or immediately after I have disappeared or have been deprived of my liberty, my literary last will and testament will irrevocably come into force...and then the main part of my works will start being published, works I have refrained from publishing all these years.

"If the officers of the KGB track down and confiscate copies of the harmless 'Cancer Ward' in all provincial cities — and fire holders of these copies from their work or drive them from higher educational institutions — what will they do when my principal and post-humorous books stream out all over Russia?"

He declined to discuss in detail the unpublished "main part" of his works, especially in an apartment he believed was bugged. He turned instead to plans for publishing the remainder of the series that began with "August 1914."

HE SAID THAT probably "I won't let out 'October 1916' before the third volume, 'March 1917' is ready." The two are too closely knit and only together could explain his view of the course of events, the writer said.

"August 1914" related in fictional form the catastrophic defeat of the Russians by the Germans in the early days of World War I. The other two books are planned to carry the narrative through the Bolshevik revolution.

FUTURE TOWNSHIP FACILITY — The beautiful scene of Belleville Lake shown above is the swimming beach at Edison Pointe Park located on the north shore of the lake. The lake and park will be taken over by Van Buren Township around the first of next year. Edison Co. and township attorneys are presently preparing ownership transfer papers from the firm to the township. An open house was held at the park Aug. 18.

EDISON POINTE PARK'S CLUB HOUSE — The inviting scene above is the entrance into the club house at Edison Pointe Park, owned and operated by the Detroit Edison Co. for its employees. The club house along with other park facilities will be owned and operated by Van Buren Township Recreation Department about January, 1974. The 101-acre park located on Belleville Lake held open house Saturday. Attorneys for both the firm and township are preparing papers on the legal transfer of both the park and lake to the township.

Huron students work with new spell program

Huron schools' fifth and sixth graders will be working with a new approach to spelling this year.

Called "Continuous Progress in Spelling," the program is designed to allow each student to succeed in spelling at his own rate, with the incentive that once he has finished the program he need never study spelling again (unless he wants to).

Developed at Brigham Young University and the University of Utah over a 12-year period, the program was so successful in public schools near those universities that the demand for it soon outstripped the universities' abilities to print and distribute it according to Huron school officials.

THE PROGRAM was put up for sale and sold to a private publisher in 1971. The publisher put it on cards, added colors to make the materials more attractive and first offered it for sale last year.

Based on extensive research and analysis of the writing of both children and adults, the program consists of a total of 4,913 words, organized into units on the basis of how frequently the words are used, how difficult they are and how similar they are to other words in the list.

If a youngster masters the spelling of all 4,913 words, he will have command of 98 per cent of all the words he will ever use in daily writing. If he masters only the 1,000 most commonly used words, he will have mastered 89 per cent of the words he will use in his day-to-day schoolwork.

HURON'S TEACHERS and administrators said they will be watching the success of the program closely. If as successful as anticipated, it will be adopted for all youngsters and a youngster can be told as early as third grade that there is a definite goal toward which he can aspire.

Arboretum ceremony unites Keib-Chafin

The father of the bridegroom, Rev. Almon Keib, officiated at the ceremony which united Connie Sue Chafin and Blaine Keib in holy matrimony. The August 4 nuptials were solemnized at six o'clock in the Ann Arbor Arboretum.

Connie is the daughter of Mrs. Barbara Manning of Ypsilanti, formerly of Belleville, and Russell Chafin of Los Angeles, California. Rev. and Mrs. Keib of Westland are parents of the bridegroom.

For her wedding day, Connie chose a gown of Chantilly lace and organza tied in a 'V' at the front and made with a high neckline and full bishop sleeves. Her lace mantilla veil cascaded to floor length and her nosegay bouquet was comprised of lavender asters, white miniature carnations and baby's breath.

AS HER SISTER'S honor attendant, Lynda Chafin of Ypsilanti donned a lilac gown patterned along empire lines with long sleeves trimmed in white. She wore a white feather headdress and carried a nosegay of lavender asters and statice.

The bridegroom's brother, David Keib of Westland, served as best man.

Vigo's banquet room in Ypsilanti was reserved for the reception which followed. Guests were greeted by Mrs. Manning in a floral printed formal gown and Mrs. Keib in a powder blue and white gown. Both mothers were presented with corsages of white carnations.

After a brief honeymoon, the newlyweds made their home at 525 N. Adams Street, Ypsilanti.

The new Mrs. Keib attended Belleville High School for three years before moving to Ypsilanti and graduating from Willow Run High. She later attended Washtenaw Community College.

An alumnus of Northwestern High School in Albion, Pennsylvania, the bridegroom graduated from Wayne State University this year and plans to enter graduate school at the University of Michigan this fall.

Recycled clothing--is it next?

Clothing recycling may soon become a significant consumer issue as increasing world demand for fabric fibers meets with decreasing supplies, says extension clothing and textiles specialist Bernetta Kahabka.

The price of wool has already risen sharply, Miss Kahabka notes. The combination of high prices and wool durability will very likely motivate consumers to try to get the most out of their clothing dollars by wearing wool garments longer or updating them to get the most possible wear from them.

"Recycling doesn't have to mean tearing a garment apart and reconstructing it," the specialist points out. "You can often extend the usefulness of a garment simply by combining it with others in a new way or making use of braids, trims and accessories to give it a new look."

If the petroleum squeeze continues, synthetic fibers may become the target of industrial recycling efforts, Miss Kahabka says. About 10 percent of the petroleum yield each year goes into the manufacture of synthetic fibers. A reduction here would mean decreased production of synthetics without a corresponding drop in demand.

One result, aside from higher prices, could very well be industrial recycling and reuse of synthetic fibers. This will involve costs, too.

The fabric industry is already feeling some pressure to recycle synthetics, Miss Kahabka notes. The synthetic fibers are not biodegradable, and when discarded add to environmental pollution.

Gold Card Club visits at Capitol

Last Monday 35 members of the Senior Citizens Gold Card Club of Sumpter spent a delightful day at the State Capitol in Lansing. The trip, which was made by bus, was planned by the President, Rev. C. C. Davis, along with the township clerk, Clarence J. Hoffman who made contact with State Representative Edward E. Mahalak who met the group and escorted them on a tour of the entire Capitol.

Later they were served dinner in the cafeteria of the Mason Building which was paid for by Mr. Hoffman. To complete the tour the group arrived at Kellogg Center at M.S.U. and were guided by two well-qualified students over the entire campus.

MRS. RICHARD A. BLIZNIK

Fly to Hawaii

Bliznik-Bruce wed in Jackson

In a four o'clock ceremony August 4 at the First Presbyterian Church in Jackson, Marian Ann Bruce of Farmington Hills and Richard A. Bliznik of Romulus spoke their nuptial vows. The double ring rite was read by the Rev. Robert Gibson Jr. before an altar adorned with white mums and yellow roses.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew L. Bruce of Jackson and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Bliznik of 37485-Wick Road, Romulus.

Music for the wedding was played by violin soloist, Mrs. Ken Hamilton, and organist, Norman Lindsay. Selections included 'Sunrise, Sunset', 'The Theme from Romeo and Juliet' and 'Lara's Theme.'

GIVEN IN marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in Venice lace and organza fashioned with a high neckline, empire waist, long sheer sleeves and chapel-length train.

Her cathedral veil of silk illusion was caught to a Juliet cap and her bouquet was comprised of yellow rosebuds, white baby mums and baby's breath.

As her sister's matron of honor, Mrs. Thomas Steiner of Milan donned a peach-colored gown with flocked flowers. With the peasant-style dress she wore a matching picture hat and carried a basket of yellow daisy mums and baby's breath.

Dressed identically were the bridesmaids, Mrs. Stanley Friedman of Silver Springs, Maryland, and Mrs. Robert Sarrine of Ypsilanti.

Best man was Thomas Hoagland of Westland with William Timoszyk of Livonia and Thomas Bliznik, brother of the bridegroom, as ushers.

MRS. BRUCE selected for her daughter's wedding a peach jacket-dress with the same colored accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a pink ensemble with matching accessories. Both were presented with orchid corsages.

The ballroom at the Hotel Hayes in Jackson was reserved for the reception which followed. Some 200 relatives and friends attended and congratulated the young couple who later departed for a week-long honeymoon in Hawaii. For traveling the new Mrs. Bliznik changed to a navy blue dress with white accents. The newlyweds are now at home in Farmington Hills.

A graduate of Eastern Michigan University, the bride is currently an elementary teacher in Union Lake. Her husband, also an EMU alumnus, is employed by Hartford Realty in Livonia.

Helping foot the bills is also part of women's lib

Women who once reached for their lipstick while their dates paid the restaurant bill might be as likely to reach for their money these days.

Not so long ago, the rule was clear: the man invited the woman and paid the way, especially in the initial dating stages.

But now dating is becoming more casual, and so are paying habits. Singles are inching their way toward a greater sharing of financial responsibilities.

The women's liberation movement, the questioning of traditional social structures that began in the 1960s and the rising cost of an evening on the town have made the difference, say men and women from New York City to Berkeley, Calif.

"Men used to accept cash under the table. Now, I just go up and pay the bill. They aren't reluctant about it. It's incredible how fast things have changed. In the last 10 years, they've turned upside down," said Kent Juhan, a slender, dark-haired receptionist in an architectural firm in Berkeley. Women's liberation has brought some women to feel that they want equality all the way.

"Up until about two years ago, I never paid for anything. But I'm paying my share more often. I just like being more independent. By paying occasionally, I have more say about what we do," said Ellen Dayton, 30, who makes about $13,000 working for the Environmental Protection Agency in Washington, D.C. Some men agree; others don't. But in most cases, there is no set rule and a thorny question can arise: Should the woman offer to pay or should the man hint for help?

New York banker David Smith, 31, suggests that women feel they're expected to chip in, liberated or not.

"There's a social pressure for a woman to assert herself and be independent. And there are probably a lot of men who communicate to their dates that they should pay their way because it's now expected," said Smith.

Other men contend that, because women are earning better salaries today, they should be willing to chip in.

Cost is a strong factor, especially the increasingly popular weekend date.

"I like to spend money on a woman. I like the male role, but when it gets to a $150 plane fare, it's a different story," says Charles Markarian of the days he used to pay the entire tab for a skiing weekend. Markarian, 30, is a garment manufacturer in Bergenfield, N.J.

Brownlee-Harcas wed

Florida honeymoon follows summer rite

A four o'clock ceremony at Emmanuel Lutheran Church in Ypsilanti united Deborah Kathleen Harcas and David Harold Brownlee in marriage. They exchanged double ring vows before Pastor Kotchenruther and some 200 relatives and friends.

Altar vases of large standard mums and carnations formed the background for the August 4 wedding with smaller arrangements of carnations and mums marking the center aisle pews.

Music for the happy occasion was provided by Kenneth Berry and included "Theme from Love Story" and "The Lord's Prayer."

PARENTS OF the young couple are Bellevillites, Mr. and Mrs. William Harcas of 19375 Lohr Road and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brownlee of 11525 Dewitt.

Entering the church with her father, Debbie appeared in a Victorian style creation of silk organza and lace. The little fitted bodice was formed of Venise and Alencon lace sprinkled with seed pearls and the toe-touching skirt featured a lace flounce at the hemline.

A headpiece of lace and pearls secured her lace-trimmed illusion veil which drifted to mid-back length and a colonial bouquet of white roses and stephanotis completed her bridal finery.

A pastel pink gown, also patterned along Victorian lines, was worn by the honor attendant, Mrs. Robert (Susan) Pinter, sister of the bride. The flocked polyester dress, fashioned with bishop sleeves, was accented with Venetian lace. Her picture hat was in matching pink and the white satin basket she carried was filled with pink roses and daisies.

Bridesmaids in identical pastel gowns were Mrs. William Mydlarz, the bridegroom's sister from Jackson, in blue; Dawn Bruder of Belleville in lime green; Paula Nuccitellie of Dearborn Heights in yellow; and the junior bridesmaid, nine-year old Lisa Shanley, the bride's cousin from Allen Park, in pale pink. The carnations in their flower baskets were tipped to match their frocks.

A CLOSE FRIEND of the bridegroom, Bruce Gerlach Jr. of Ann Arbor, carried out the duties of best man. Others on the esquire side were William Mydlarz, brother-in-law of the bride from Belleville; and Fred Peterson of Belleville.

Following the ceremony a reception for 375 guests was held at the Tri-County Sportsman League at Saline. Mrs. Harcas received in a floor-length gown of orchid and white polka dots while the bridegroom's mother greeted guests in a formal gown of lime green polyester. Both wore corsages of white phalenopsis orchids.

For the flight to Florida and a two-weeks honeymoon, the new Mrs. Brownlee donned a red and white polka dotted pantsuit to which she added her corsage of white roses and stephanotis. The newlyweds are now living at 50333 Holiday West, Belleville.

DEBBIE WAS graduated in 1969 from Belleville High School and in 1973 from Eastern Michigan University where she earned her B.A.E. in art. She is currently employed as a secretary at the physical plant at E.M.U.

Her husband, a 1968 alumnus of Belleville High, graduated from E.M.U. in 1972 with a B.S. degree. He, too, is employed at the physical plant at E.M.U. as an architectural draftsman.

The Harold Brownlees played host to 24 guests at the rehearsal dinner

RECENTLY WED — Shirley A. Bliznik and Edward Bogotski, both of Romulus, were united in marriage recently at St. Aloysius Catholic Church. Vows were repeated at ten in the morning before the Rev. Joseph Kernosek. Parents of the young couple are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bliznik of Wick Road and Mrs. Mary Bogotski of Van Petten Street. For her wedding day, the bride donned a long white dress of linen accented with long eyelet sleeves. Her corsage was an orchid and her accessories were chosen in white. Following the ceremony, the bridal pair and their parnets (who attended them) dined at the Sheraton Metro Inn. Before taking up residence in Belleville, the newlyweds honeymooned for a week in Northern Michigan.

Some outdoor fun ideas to help harried mothers

If children wrote dictionaries, "summer" and "outdoors" would probably be synonyms.

Any mother, on the other hand, might match "summer" with "Mommy, I don't have anything to do."

Keeping your child busy during the outdoor months isn't so much a matter of entertaining him, says Michigan State University Child Development Specialist Jeanne Brown, as it is of providing the setting and materials to spark his natural curiosity and creativity.

Something as simple as an old blanket and a clothesline or a rope to tie between two trees can set the stage for hours of imaginative play. Transformed by the power of a child's imagination, that blanket can be a tent in the jungles of Africa, a shelter against the wind-whirled Arctic snow, a school or, rolled up, a cowboy's trusty bedroll.

Some cardboard boxes, a board or two for a counter and a collection of empty cans and cartons are obviously the makings for a store.

A large cardboard box - like the ones refrigerators or other large appliances are shipped in - can be a play house, a space ship, a fort, a battleship, a covered wagon - whatever the day's activities demand.

A sandbox is a summer "natural." Digging and fillings and emptying containers will keep a preschooler occupied for hours. And the older child enjoys building tunnels, making sand castles, engineering roads for his toy trucks or creating a landscape of hills and valleys for farm or ranch animals.

Art activities, like many other indoor pastimes, can go outdoors as well. Cut-and-paste creations take on a new dimension with the addition of natural objects: feathers, sticks, stones, leaves, seeds, sand, bark and pine cone petals. And clay modeling outside offers a whole new world of shapes to copy and textures to imprint.

Easels can go outdoors, too, for a session of painting from nature. Little finger painters will delight in splashing the colors about with the knowledge that Mother won't mind a few drips here and there.

Fun with water doesn't demand that you install a fancy swimming pool, the specialist notes. A small plastic wading pool or even a metal washtub can be the occasion for a splashing good time.

All you have to do is provide the pool or tub, put the water in the stand back! Dipping, filling and pouring out, smacking the water to see it splash, washing doll clothes or sailing toy boats will keep boredom at a safe distance for many a hot afternoon.

For a change of pace, put some soap flakes in the water, provide an egg beater and watch the bubbles fly! For individual bubble blowing, make a loop of heavy wire for dipping into a bowl of dish-washing liquid.

If you can't coax the kids to come inside to eat lunch, try taking the lunch outside, Mrs. Brown suggests. Even a peanut butter and jelly sandwich is something special when it's eaten outdoors picnic-style. Stick to simple, easy-to-eat and easy-to-perse foods, she suggests, and let lunch be an occasion.

The 'drive' is on for Scout leaders

Men, working women and college students, as well as mothers, for the first time are being actively recruited as Girl Scout troop leaders in a special drive launched today by the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council.

The drive, which is coordinating with a national publicity effort by Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. out of New York, is using local media appeals announcements at church services and speeches at service clubs to enroll over 100 new troop leaders. New leaders will work with Girl Scouts ages 7 to 17 in Washtenaw, Livingston, western Wayne and northern Monroe counties. In this area, 12,000 Girl Scouts are organized in 600 troops.

In announcing the drive, Council president, Mrs. Louis Galan, said "We don't want just anybody. We want energetic, intelligent men and women who can help girls grow into happy, resourceful citizens. And we're going to find them."

IN ADDITION to troop leaders, the Huron Valley Council is enlisting volunteer Troop Services Directors, adults who recruit, train and assist troop leaders. Resource people who share expertise of any kind, from astronomy to kayaking, with Girl Scout troops at one or two meetings are also being sought.

Mrs. Galan acknowledged that mothers would continue to dominate the Council's group of troop leaders.

"MOTHER-LEADERS are the heart and soul of our organization," she said. "Without them we could not stay afloat. We just want to broaden our base of recruitment through this drive."

Troop leaders in the Huron Valley Council enjoy certain job benefits, she pointed out. These include the opportunity to take free courses in group behavior, child development, human relations and ecology through Council training programs. They can also attend national training conferences for which scholarships are available. During the past year, over 30 area women attended national meetings, many with scholarship aid.

Interviews are held with all prospects to determine their interests and abilities. For further information, individuals are invited to telephone the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council at 483-2370 or write the Council at 19 North Hamilton Street, Ypsilanti, 48197.

A THOUGHT TO REMEMBER

BY HAROLD REDISKE, DIRECTOR

Labor Day thoughts... Since the first Labor Day parade in 1882 in New York, evolution (machinery replacing men) and forms of revolution have been constant companions in the cause of labor. Strikes, lock-outs, sit-ins, boycotts, bricks, clubs - yes, even guns have played a part in labor gains... and losses. Goals have been reached, new goals set up. The working man (and that includes most of us these days) has gained stature and status.

While we still have poverty in places, most people today can and do buy the necessities of life. Increasing numbers of people enjoy luxuries which preceding generations dared not even hope for. With all this progress, an unremoved thorn in the flesh remains. It is a perplexing problem with no easy answer in sight. Interestingly enough, the problem is mentioned in the 28th Psalm: "Requite them according to the work of their hands; render them their due reward." The problem? Just what is "due reward"? No 20th Century Solomon has yet appeared with even a half way acceptable answer. We wonder. Is there an answer? If so, what is it?

HOCKEY PRACTICE—Margo Carter, 9, limbers up her wrist before entering competition in box hockey at the Romulus Recreation Department Sponsored field day activities at the Lower Huron Metropark, recently. The field day marked the last day of the recreation program's summer day camp in the park.

Old Car festival will honor special guests this weekend

Greenfield Village will take time out from the activities of the 23rd annual Old Car Festival this weekend to honor some very special guests.

Next Saturday the village will pay tribute to Gordon M. Buehrig, one of the country's outstanding automotive designers whose accomplishments in his field are almost legendary.

He is most famous for designing the fabulous classic Cord 810 and 812 models of the mid-thirties, but his reputation could just as easily rest on his revolutionary design of the Auburn and Duesenberg boat-tails of the same period.

ALL ARE HIGHLY acclaimed and much sought after by classic car collectors, and all have been revived as near-replicas by later manufacturers as further proof of the timelessness of their design.

More recently, Buehrig was body engineer for the near-classic Continental Mark II.

Next Sunday, the village will honor four historical automobile societies for their preservation and dissemination of automotive history and their restorations of antique automobiles. The village also will express its appreciation for their continued cooperation and support in the presentation of the Old Car Festival.

The organizations are: the Antique Automobile Club of

—For your— Entertainment

America, and Historical Automobile Society of Canada, the Horseless Carriage Club of America and the Veteran Motor Car Club of America.

THESE RECOGNITION ceremonies will be just a part of the varied activities at the festival. Each day's festivities begin at noon with a parade of antique cars through the village streets to the activities area where they compete for blue ribbons for the excellence and accuracy of their restoration and vie for prizes in a series of races and contests.

Among the highlights of the Old Car Festival is a demonstration by 60 members of the Wheelmen, a national organization devoted to keeping alive the heritage of American cycling, of the techniques of riding antique high wheel bicycles. Another is the Canadian Model T Assembly Team which converts a welter of component parts into an operating car in a matter of minutes and triumphantly drives it off the field.

Helping to re-create the nostalgia of America's early motoring days are appropriately costumed hostesses, and authentic Dixieland band and related special exhibits and crafts demonstrations.

At Detroit's Olympia

Boys' Circus of Spain to perform

The internationally acclaimed Boys' Circus of Spain, Los Muchachos, will appear at Detroit's Olympia Stadium from Sept. 28 through Sept. 30 as part of their first tour of the North American continent.

The hundred-member troupe is a product of Father Jesus Silva's hope for a better future for the world's homeless and underprivileged children.

In 1956, the then newly ordained priest founded Ciudad de los Muchachos to culminate a dream formed at age 14 when he saw the late Spencer Tracy star in the documentary film on Father Flanagan's Boys' Town, U.S.A.

HIMSELF a descendent of Spain's famous circus family, Feijoo-Castilla, Father Silva first got the idea to form a circus for his boys in 1963, the original purpose being self-entertainment and the development of a profession.

By 1965, the population of the "city" had grown to 1,500 and the talent of the boys' had developed at an equal pace. Los Muchachos first hit the road a year later and played entirely within the bounds of Spain until their first venture out in 1970 to appear at the Grand Palais in Paris. Cheering crowds and raving critics caused an original 10 day stay to be extended for two more weeks.

The rest is history as Los Muchachos has received outstanding reviews throughout Europe since.

All the thrills and excitement associated with the word "circus" are included in a Los Muchachos performance. The highwire, the clowns, the sword swallowing and other traditional "Big Top" acts will rival any professional circus as great entertainment for the entire family.

THOSE IN attendance at one of the seven scheduled performances at Olympia will be amazed at the prevailing sense of pride and accomplishment possessed by the boys, a spokesman said.

Los Muchachos will open with two shows on Sept. 28 at 5:00 p.m. and 8 p.m. On Sept. 29 there are three performances at 10:30 a.m., 2:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. The engagement will close on Sept. 30 with a 2 p.m. matinee and a 6 p.m. performance.

For details call or write: Donna Martin, 5920 Grand River, Olympia Stadium, Detroit, 48208, (895-7000).

TALENTED TEEN—Seventeen year old PANCACITO is a clown, mimic, acrobat and juggler. He has been with Los Muchachos: The International Boys Circus since he was eleven. The show opens at Olympia on Sept. 28 for an engagement that runs through Sept. 30.

This weekend in Detroit

Mexican Festival to be held

This weekend, festival-lovers can "head south" to downtown Detroit for the Mexican Ethnic Festival on the riverfront, a part of the Detroit's summer festival series and of the Detroit Mexican-American community's celebration of Mexican Independence Week.

Theme of the three-day event, Friday through Sunday is "peace." During Friday evening's opening ceremonies, four white doves will be set free to represent the four summers that Detroit's Mexican-American community has presented a festival.

Pinatas, clay pots covered with colorful fringed paper and suspended on rope, will be filled with candies and prizes. They will be broken each evening for children enjoying the festival.

Breaking pinatas is a popular Mexican custom, observed at birthdays and during the Christmas season. Featured entertainment at the festival will include Mexican folk dancing, singing and strolling mariachi bands. Mexican foods such as tacos, tamales, enchiladas, burritos, carmitas, pastry and Spanish rice will be available, as will tequila, margaritas and Mexican beer.

Curios on sale will include imported purses, paintings, furniture, pinatas and clothing.

The festival will begin at 6 p.m. Friday and continue noon to 11 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday.

Other festivals in the Detroit summer series are the Arab, Sept. 14-16 and the Latin-American Sept. 21-23. For festival information, call Gail Witty, of the City of Detroit's Department Report and Information Committee, at 224-3768.

Jaycees sponsor annual golf outing

Romulus-area golfers have an opportunity to "show their stuff" Oct. 5 at the Romulus Jaycee-sponsored second annual golf outing at Shady Hollow Golf Course.

Tickets for the day-long event are $20, which includes "all the holes you can play," food and drinks throughout the day.

Information on entering is available by calling Leonard Folmar, project chairman, at 941-0666.

Cash prizes are being offered as part of the tournament.

All proceeds from the tournament will go into the Jaycee community betterment programs for Romulus.

Antique sale set

Cranberry pickers, wooden hobby horses, butter molds, blanket chests, harvest tables, and sugar buckets - all these and more products of the oldtime woodworker's art - are among the antiques and collectibles on display and for sale in the Detroit Fall Antique Show-Sale, Sept. 12-16 at the Light Guard Armory, 4400 East Eight Mile Rd., Detroit.

While not everyone is in the market for a cranberry picker, there is such variety in the wood household utensils, furniture, and wooden privities at the Detroit Fall Antique Show that everyone will find something of special interest, a spokesman said.

Hours of the Detroit Fall Antique Show-Sale are from 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. the first four days, and from 1 to 9 p.m. in the final day.

Schulenberg appointed as manager

WILLIAM E. SCHULENBERG

The appointment of William E. Schulenberg as works manager of the Hydra-matic Division of General Motors recently announced by George W. Griffith, division general manager, was effective last Saturday.

Schulenberg succeeds G.W. Griffith who was appointed general manager of Hydra-matic Division on Aug. 1. Schulenberg has been works manager of the Packard Electric Division of General Motors since 1966.

A native of Akron, Ohio, he served in the U.S. Army from 1945 to 1947. After graduating from Purdue University with a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering, he was employed at the Packard Electric Division in Warren, Ohio. In 1953 he became a supervisor in that department.

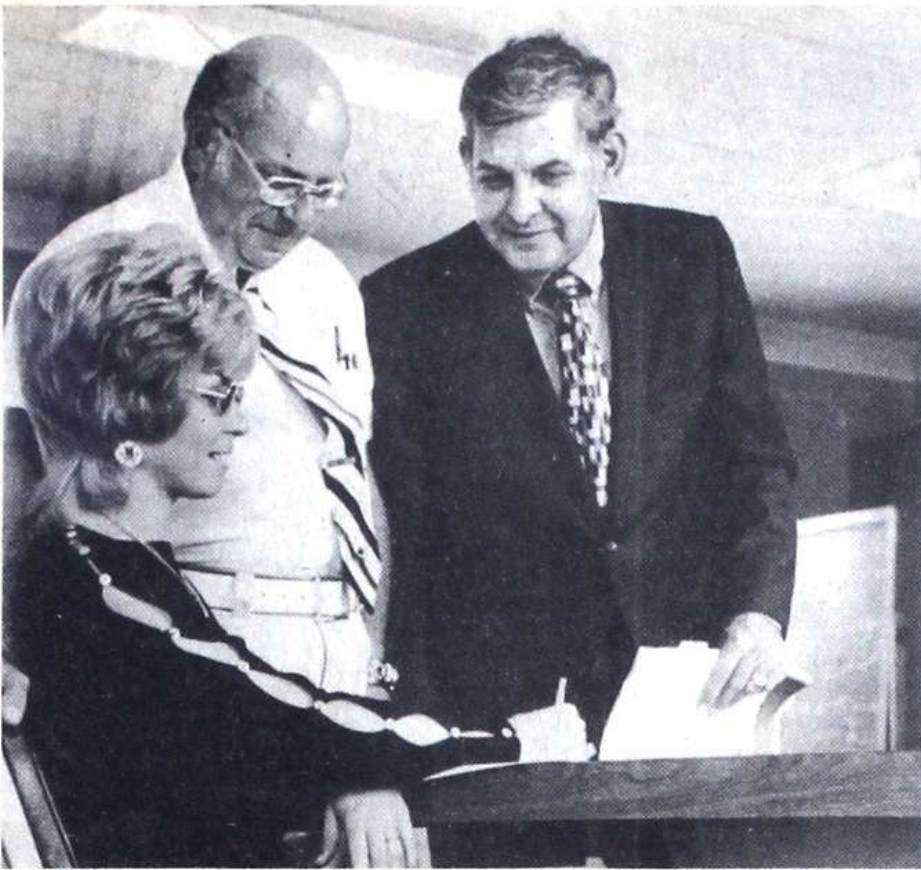

Subsequent promotions led to works manager at Packard Electric in 1966.

Schulenberg and his wife, Ruth, are the parents of four children: Martha, Robert, Jeffrey and William.

Adult physical ed program enrollment is being taken

Enrollment for the winter sessions of the Adult Physical Fitness Program, conducted under the supervision of the Van Buren Township Recreation Department, will be taken this month for the program's winter kick-off scheduled for Oct. 1.

The physical fitness program is fast becoming one of the most popular recreational activities in the township. Since its inception in May, 1972, 300 families have participated in the program, Ben R. Robertson, program director, said.

The classes of the physical fitness program, which has the wholehearted support of the township board, also are geared for the middle-age person.

The program is structured for a persons individual needs based on age, weight, pulse and physical condition, Robertson said.

THE TWO-HOUR classes are held Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursday at 7 p.m. at Belleville High School - the Physical fitness consisting of exercises and testing programs including jogging around the high school's gymnasium is held from 7 to 8 p.m. and the recreational phase of the program from 8 to 9 p.m.

The Oct. 1 class is limited to the first 100 applicants who apply, Robertson said.

Films and speakers from professional sports are presented throughout the winter program. In addition, a physical fitness clinic run by professional medics will be conducted.

The results of class attendance, Robertson added, "would be a stronger heart, weight reduction, better mental attitude and over-all improved health."

"A PERSON doesn't have time not to participate. If you do not have time to participate then you are the person we're looking for," Robertson said.

The Adult Physical Fitness Program is basically an aerobic program. He pointed out and explained as follows:

"Aerobic refers to a variety of exercises that stimulate the heart and lung activity for a time sufficiently long enough to produce beneficial changes in the body," Robertson said.

Veteran population growth to decline, VA study shows

Growth in the veteran population, from 24 to 29 million since 1965, will continue for two years, then start a steady decline, a Veterans Administration (VA) projection shows.

In 1975, living veterans of all wars will number 29.2 million, and after that date, deaths will begin to outnumber military discharges. By the year 2,000, the veteran population will be back to the 1965 figure of 24.1 million, the report said.

VA projects veteran population periodically for planning purposes, with special emphasis on assessing future needs for health care facilities.

AT THE PRESENT time, for example, World War II (WW II) veterans number more than 14 million with an average age of 53, but by the turn of the century, more than 60 per cent of the remaining veterans will have served during or after the Korean Conflict.

The projection shows the WW II group will be down to 13.5 million by June 1975 with an average age of 55.4 years, and 25 years later there will have been a 68 per cent drop to 4.4 million with an average of 77.4 years.

Two older veteran groups—WW I and Spanish American War veterans — still will be represented by the turn of the century.

The forecast is that there will be about a thousand WW I veterans (average age of 111.9) and chances are that some of the Spanish War veterans still will be living in the year 2,000.

This group currently numbers about 2,000 with an average of 93.7 years; by 1975 approximately 1,000 will remain, and fewer than 500 probably will be living in June 1985 when the average age will be 102.8.

NO AGE PROJECTION is made for the few who will live to the year 2,000.

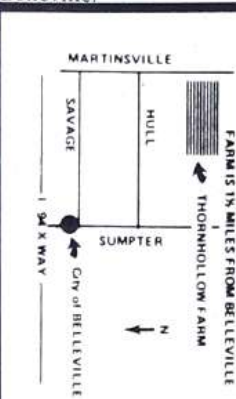

The last veteran of the Indian Wars (1817-1898) Fred Friske, died recently in Chicago at the age of 101.

About 19 million persons in the U.S. have hearing defects, reports the Hearing Aid Industry Conference.

The result of the August primary election held in Romulus is added proof that the people of Romulus want HYLE J. CARMICHAEL as their Mayor.

Mayor Carmichael has constantly stated, "A united and harmonious council is essential to the well being and progress of Romulus and that the administration can function more effectively with an able and dynamic group to work with on the council level."

Glass center stops operation in Belleville

The Belleville Glass Collection Center, located at 11900 Belleville Rd., Belleville terminated its operation last Saturday.

"The future operation of the center has become inexpedient due to difficulties encountered in processing discarded glass containers and transporting glass to the recycling center," said The Rev. Wilson F. Wood, pastor of the Belleville United Presbyterian Church. The center was operated at the church.

The glass collection center has been in operation since October, 1970. It was organized by a group of women from the Belleville United Presbyterian Church who were concerned environmental quality.

Many concerned citizens and organizations in the community have helped to keep the center open for the last three years.

Among these are the Boy Scouts of America, a sixth grade class from the Edgemont Elementary School in Belleville, the Van Buren Township Sanitation Department, youth groups from St. Anthony's Catholic Parish, Trinity Episcopal Church in Belleville, Lutheran Church of the Apostle, Belleville United Methodist and Belleville United Presbyterian Church and the Interfaith Council.

The center was operated as a community service seeking no profit, Rev. Wood said.

Spokesmen for the center said the number of containers processed during the existence of the center indicates a real need for this kind of service in the community.

They regret that continued operation on a volunteer basis has become too difficult to maintain and express hope that a similar program will be initiated sometime in the future as a commercial venture or a governmental service.

Area parents to register pre-schoolers in program

The Romulus Community Schools are in the process of registering children for Head Start. This program is for families of boys and girls who are four or will be four by Dec.

1. Also five year olds who are too young to go to kindergarten.

Some three-year-olds will be enrolled in the event that all the eligible four and five year olds are being serviced.

This year they are programming for children with special needs in order to insure they get necessary services to achieve full benefits of participation in the Head Start program.

Boys and girls are transported to and from the center by school bus, and are in the center for a half day and have a nourishing lunch before they go home.

For more information, contact Mrs. Lorena G. Burton, director of federal and state programs, at 941-1600, or

Road commission approves installation of traffic light

The installation of a traffic control light at the intersection of Sumpter and Willis Roads in Sumpter Township by the Wayne County Road Commission has received approval of the commission's traffic division.

The request for a traffic light at the intersection along with requests for traffic safety measures at two other intersections in the township was initiated by the United Homeowners Association of Sumpter.

Cecil Hall, Sumpter Township merchant, and Mrs. Diane Uminski, township housewife, serve as committee of two for the homeowners association and made a personal appearance at the road commission office last week regarding the traffic light.

He reported that a vehicle count taken at the intersection showed that more than 8,000 vehicles passed through the intersection in a 24-hour period.

He also reported that a barricade will be installed at the Willow and Sumpter Road intersection.

The intersection forms a "Y" shape traffic lane.

The barricade will be installed on the right side of Sumpter Road and the left side will become a one-way flow off Sumpter Road into Willow Road.

The homeowners association also was told, according to Mrs. Uminski, that the Road Commission will widen the intersection.

WHITE LACQUER—A white lacquered hardwood floor combines easy-care with the creation of a feeling of spaciousness. Built around period hardwood furniture, this room was designed by Michael de Santis.

Try lacquering it white

Dramatize hardwood floor

"Eyes front" becomes "Eyes down" when you support a room's decor with handsomely dramatic hardwood floors. And one of the most dramatic treatments you can give your hardwood floor is to lacquer it white.

Happily, hardwood floors can take on just about any flavoring you wish, from rustic to formal, from sleek and modern to ancient and distressed. And color is one of the top reasons for their versatility.

In hardwood's natural coloring, the range is from the light soft coloring of birch, through the warm and mellow shades of oak, maple and pecan, to the deep dark tones of ebony.

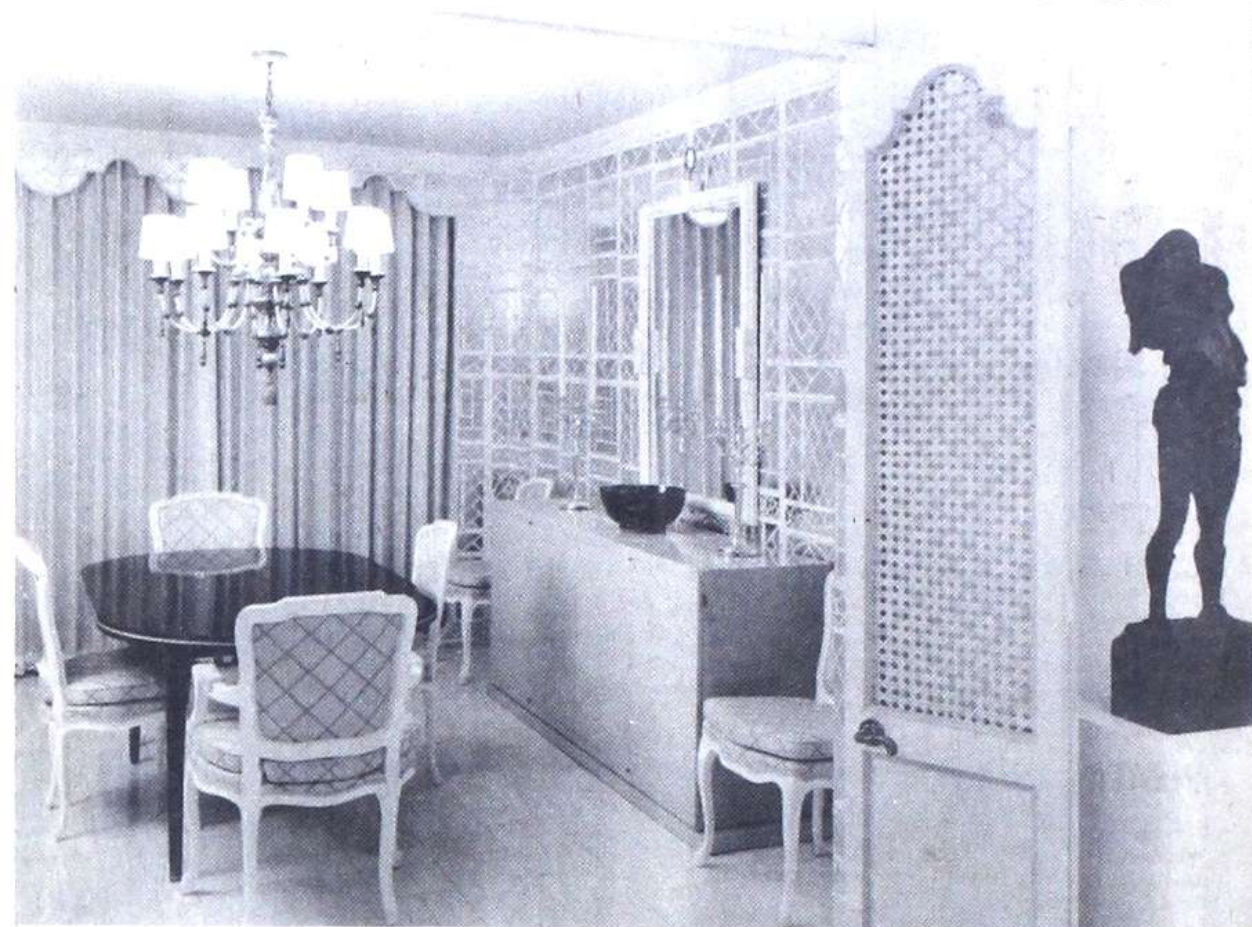

STAINED, the choices are even greater, as hardwoods can go lighter or darker than their natural shades while keeping in the original color family; or they can take on varying degrees of all the colors of the rainbow, with say, a tint of cranberry or olive added to the stain for effect.

The best way to add color to the floor is to use a pigmented penetrating sealer. It sinks into the wood, carrying the color with it. This means that the natural characteristics of the wood remain visible, and the finish will wear only as the wood wears.

Never color your hardwood floor with paint; paint hides the natural grain pattern of the wood, for which hardwood floors are so prized.

White lacquer on your floor brings a crisp clean feeling that adds spark and "pizzazz" to any room. And it brings a spaciousness to the appearance of the room that no other decorating device can accomplish. Optically, it pushes the walls back, gives the room a feeling of airiness.

NOTED INTERIOR decorator Michael De Santis used a white lacquered hard-

HARDWOOD ROOM—Just about everything in this handsome dining room is hardwood: the table and chairs, credenza, wall paneling in the hallway, mirror frame, even the chandelier. And the spectacular white lacquered floor gets its warmth from its hardwood parquet beginnings.

Multi-use dining area needs plan for success

A multi-purpose dining area, whether it's part of the living room or incorporated into a kitchen, can be made as inviting and as comfortable as any full-scale dining room with the right kind of planning, according to designers.

Among the elements you'll want to consider are a table and chairs scaled to fit family needs and available space; facilities for storing dishes, glassware, silver, and table linens; adequate lighting for dining and other activities; and possibly some means of screening off the eating area.

Designers of metal dining furniture have developed a particular awareness of what is needed for such areas in new homes and apartments.

And they've created styles that are lightly scaled to cope with limited space, versatile enough to serve round-the-clock, and attractive enough to satisfy the most sophisticated tastes.

A 1973 collection, for example, several sets feature luxurious upholstery fabrics in place of the familiar vinyls. One such fabric, deep-textured fur white, appears in combination with a smoked acrylic back panel on a chrome-framed chair.

The table continues the see-through effect, with an oval top of smoked glass poised on an X-shaped chrome base.

Families with children, however, are more likely to by-pass the glamour of glass in favor of an extension table with a limited top simulating wood or marble.

"The cabinet or chest used to store dining accessories should provide some extra serving space, particularly if there's no pass-thru counter to the kitchen," designers advise. "In very small quarters, a divider or wall system that incorporates a drop-front desk may answer both needs."

Modernize old furnace if equipment is obsolete

Millions of Americans have expensive antiquities in their basements but don't realize it. Some antiques, of course, are expensive to buy, but others are expensive to keep, such as an outdated, air polluting oil or coal furnace or boiler.

Even homeowners in the know — those who are aware that their heating equipment is obsolete — continue to put up with what they've got because they feel that replacing the whole system would be a budget-breaking undertaking.

IN SUCH CASES the most practical remedy, the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association (GAMA) advises, is to modernize the old furnace or boiler by installing a gas conversion burner in the firebox.

The changeover is inexpensive; the cost averages between $175 and $350, depending on the equipment you select and the cost of labor where you live.

That amounts to approximately half the price of a new replacement furnace, and it is one-fifth the outlay for a replacement boiler, according to GAMA.

Heating experts say that heating with gas can save a family considerable money in the days of high costs. In almost every section of the country gas is the least expensive fuel, according to the national trade group.

A CONVERSION burner is designed to adapt any sound furnace or boiler fired by other fuels to gas, whether the existing unit has a round, rectangular or square firebox. The change takes only four hours, and the ducts, pipes, radiators or registers of the old system usually can be retained.

GAMA also points out that utilizing gas eliminates fuel storage, and that repeated basement and chimney cleaning and frequent mechanical servicing is unnecessary.

wood floor to underscore a striking dining room he designed. He achieved the right degree of whiteness by applying three coats of white lacquer, with each of the first two rubbed down before applying the next.

As with the pigmented penetrating sealer, the white lacquer sinks into the hardwood, carrying the color with it, giving the floor a depth of color not otherwise available.

The rest of the room is done in shades of white with silver, with only one touch of a dark color. The dark touch is in the table top, a natural, dark hardwood oval tabletop finished with a clear lacquer that lets the natural grain pattern show through.

Around the table are white lacquered hardwood Louis XVI dining room chairs upholstered in a white and silver treillage pattern.

Another silver treillage pattern is used for the wall treatment. A hardwood sideboard of a modern rectangular design, done in a glossy off-white lacquer, supports handsome silver candlesticks with white candles.

ANOTHER INTERESTING dining area is supported by de Santis' white lacquered hardwood floors. A small dining room, the whiteness of the floor is picked up again not so much in the furnishings, but in the walls and draperies, with only white lacquered Chinese Chippendale chairs flanking a walnut burl table.

"White can be very dramatic," de Santis says. "But it also can be cold. So I like to use hardwood floors because the natural material contributes a warmth that can't be duplicated any other way."

Hardwood floors are not only dramatic, but they also are practical and easy-care.

Two or three waxings a year with a good past wax and buffing is all that is required.

Between-times, frequent going-over with a dust mop will keep the floor looking top-notch. On white lacquer, dust is virtually invisible, but it should be removed before it can be walked into the floor to make tiny scratches and marks.

PART OF THE practicality of the hardwood floor lies in its longevity.

Under normal household wear, a hardwood floor has a life expectancy of 50 years or more. In heavy traffic areas, individual boards or sections can be replaced without having to do a major job of the whole room.

Builders planning exhibit of homes

More than 30 building companies, members of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan (BASM) and its affiliate, the Apartment Association of Michigan (AAM), will unveil their 1974 models (houses, apartments and condominiums), starting Sept. 19, and running through Sept. 30.

The observance in Southeastern Michigan is the two-week period to be known as National Home Days. The local builders are co-operating in the event with the National Association of Home Builders, Washington, of which BASM-AAM is one of the largest regional affiliates, with more than 1,000 members.

Center of the participation in the national housing event by local builders will be Tel-12 Shopping Center, Telegraph Road at 12 Mile, Southfield.

Plans were shaping up for this two-week showing of homes, apartments and condos, billed as the Showcase of Homes. Some 30 large color pictures of the homes and multiple units will be displayed in the mall. The mountings have been built especially for this show, and will be shipped here from New York.

The displays will be open mornings, afternoons and evenings on the regular hours when the mall is open.

The Sales Managers Club of BASM-AAM is sponsoring the Showcase of Homes displays.

There will be an information booth, with builder representatives in charge to answer questions and help visitors in various ways.

There will be drawings for gifts at the end of the show, Sept. 30, including a $1,000 "mystery fur" fun coat.

In addition to the Showcase of Homes and the fur fashion events, there will be special displays of snow vehicles sponsored by a group of dealers in winter sports equipment.

Era confounds experts; Consumer has confidence

In the annals of home fashion, this decade of the 1970s may well go down as the "unpredictable era," a period that confounded most of the so-called experts by demonstrating once and for all that the real decision-maker is the ultimate consumer.

Who'd have guessed, for example, that today's homemakers still would be eager to live happily ever after with Spanish-inspired Mediterranean styling that design professionals labeled a passing fancy?

And who could have forecast the current renaissance of Early American, traditional, and even Victorian design in furnishings? Modern and, more recently, Oriental were supposed to have become the top favorites by now, but neither is setting any new records yet.

"What's happened is the emergence of a new, more confident consumer who likes what she likes without being told," observed decorating consultant.

"No longer intimidated by the old play-it-safe rules that dictated a single style for any given room, today's homemaker takes a more personal approach to providing physical comfort as well as visual satisfaction in her decorating scheme," she pointed out.

Accurately keyed to his new-found freedom of expression in decorating is the variety of new wall accessories that make up the 1973 collection.

Mobile home park survey lists all parks in country

An up-to-date survey discloses that Michigan now has 779 mobile home parks which contain 67,410 sites for mobile homes.

This is a 7 per cent increase in parks and a 9 per cent in sites during the past year, according to Robert Pelkey, executive director of the Michigan Mobile Home and Recreational Vehicle Institute which conducted the survey.

Meanwhile, permits have been issued for 53 new Michigan parks with 9,359 mobile home sites.

Among the number of reasons for the popularity of mobile homes, Pelkey points to the relative low purchase cost.

The average price of a mobile home—completely furnished—still is under $7,000, he explains, while the average sales price of single-family site-built homes rose throughout the country during the first quarter of 1973 to $32,000 which does not include furnishings.

He said that mobile homes accounted for 36 per cent of all single family housing production in the United States during the first quarter of 1973, a 5 per cent increase over the first quarter of 1972. The Michigan mobile home park survey is contained in a 1973 booklet which lists the parks by county with addresses and owners.

Copies at $2 each are available by writing to the Michigan Mobile Home and Recreational Vehicle Institute, 19045 Farmington Road, Livonia, Michigan 48152, attention Ed Klim.

To eliminate lawyers

Do it yourself divorce kit

A proposal by three Wayne County commissioners for a "self-help" divorce counter in the County Clerk's office drew support from potential users and opposition from lawyers when aired at a public meeting.

The proposal by Commissioners Paul Silver, Rose Mary C. Robinson and Huey A. Ferguson was discussed at a meeting of the Board of Commissioners Public Safety and Judiciary Committee May 30.

The concept was supported by a dozen citizens, including several women who said they needed divorces but could not afford high fees demanded by lawyers.

THE RESOLUTION in which the three commissioners made their proposal stated that the average charge by lawyers for each side "in even uncontested, childless divorces," is between $400 and $500.

Most outspoken of the supporters was Mrs. Virginia Cramer, who said she has been crusading for years to eliminate lawyers from divorce procedures. She contended that lawyers overcharge for their services.

Mrs. Cramer is under an order by Wayne County Circuit Court to refrain from operating a divorce counseling service, which included a do-it-yourself divorce kit.

One man who supported the proposal said he had handled his own divorce proceeding in court that morning. "The whole thing was over in 10 minutes," he declared.

Construction to begin for ice hockey arena

Construction of a $600,000 ice hockey arena in Van Buren Township is expected to begin in the fall with completion by November or December, said Thomas C. Mason, head of the arena investment group.

The ice hockey arena is to be built at the corner of Bemis and Sumpter Roads in Van Buren Township by Belleville Arena, Inc., a group of five investors. The Van Buren Township Board of Trustees recently granted its approval on the firm's rezoning request to permit construction of the township's first ice hockey rink.

Basically, the arena is for recreation of all types of people. Mason said. There will be open skating, figure skating and hockey. Tentative plans are that hockey teams will pay $45 to use the arena for an hour.

Teams will play for five hours, from 6 to 11 p.m., Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, according to plans. On other days, children can skate for 50 cents and adults can skate for 75 cents.

There also will be a pro-shop in the ice hockey facility where sporting equipment can be purchased.

Belleville spirits high

Only 10 days remain until Belleville High's talent-laden varsity football squad takes the initial step toward what it hopes will be its first championship in the rugged Suburban 8 Conference.

And fourth-year head coach Keith Emerson is so confident in his gridiron corps that he firmly believes 1973 is "the year we can win it." The Tigers have stumbled along in the conference for so long — their 1971 record of 5-4 was their best in a decade — that to hear the buzzing of excited players on the practice field is indication in itself that there's something special about this 1973 Belleville team.

AND THAT SOMETHING special could be the offensive backfield.

Emerson is putting his money on quarterback Gary Van Buhler, a 6-foot, 160-pound senior who took over the number one job when Lee Stiltner was injured in the first game of the 1972 season.

Van Buhler has all the trappings of an all-around quarterback, claims Emerson, chiefly because of his versatility.

"Gary has the experience and ability to do a lot of things well," said Emerson. "We feel he'll be exceptional on the options; his passing has improved greatly over the year and he has the confidence to lead the team."

THAT VERSATILITY is something that was lacking in past seasons, the coach said. Stiltner, meanwhile, has been successfully converted to a tailback, and along with veteran fullback Bruce Ford and backs Gary Adkins and Hubert Russell, form an unrelenting rapid-fire ballcarrying threat.

"Compared to last year, we definitely will be more versatile in the backfield," Emerson said, "and more people will carry the ball. I also think we have excellent competition for positions, which makes for a better football team."

The Tiger offensive line is a year older and wiser too. Dave Egnor, a 200-pound senior will snap the ball to Van Buhler, while Art Myers (192-lb) and Tom Vacek (170-lb) handle the guard slots. George Medley, a 190-pound tackle has two years of varsity experience behind him also.

OTHER LINE hopefuls are Mike Hughes, Don Rix, Mike Judge, Mark Ostrowski, Matt Byrnes, Donn Bragg, Bill Kinsella and Otty Turrentine.

Belleville opens its hope-filled season Friday, Sept. 14 at home against tricky Dearborn Heights Robichaud. Belleville won last year, 15-6, but lost in 1971.

Rule changes minimal

Michigan high school football players will keep their chinstraps fastened this year or their team will pay a 15-yard equipment violation penalty.

An associate director of the Michigan High School Athletic Association explained the rule change to a group of coaches here Wednesday.

Vern Norris also described a new ruling requiring a player to extend his arm over his head and wave it when signaling a fair catch.

That change was made in hopes of preventing an uncertain player from sticking his hand up just moments before the opposing team bowls him over and pays 15 yards for unnecessary roughness.

Michigan State freshman football linebacker Kim Rowekamp of Kalamazoo Central is the son of Western Michigan grid assistant coach Bill Rowekamp.

Martin: good manager, but lousy politician

By TOM MOORADIAN

Life is just one damned thing after another. Ask Billy Martin, he'll tell you.

For those readers who didn't recognize the phrase proceeding the disposed Detroit Tiger baseball manager's name, it is out of something Frank Ward O'Malley wrote some eons ago, so we're still a community newspaper.

Anyway, Martin is gone.

And one of the most colorful eras in Detroit Tiger Baseball history has come to an end.

Short and sweet.

Hired in 1970, the controversial Tiger skipper was fired Sunday, climaxing a three-day suspension slapped on him for ordering two of his pitchers to throw "spitballs."

Why was Martin fired?

TO PARAPHRASE Jim Campbell, Detroit Tiger general manager, Martin was dumped because... "there was a breakdown in company matters...making of public remarks about the baseball commissioner, and the American League president and other Tiger executives...that we couldn't tolerate any longer..."

MARTIN, who had a year to go on his $65,000 a year contract was also accused of "undermining the entire Tiger Baseball Club system, from the bottom up," according to Campbell.

Though Martin had little to say about Campbell's accusations, you can bet Billy will let his mournful fans get his side of the story before departing from these environs.

Running—not passing—is Huron's grid forte

New Boston Huron football coach Jim Rossow

hopes his Chiefs' veteran running attack will prove too much for Huron League opponents this fall, because if they have to rely on passing they could be in trouble.

"That's one of our big question marks — passing," admitted the second-year mentor. "Much will depend upon how our new quarterback develops, and of course, if we can find the right personnel as receivers."

"We figure our running attack will be much better than last year's though, and hope it can pull us through," he explained.

HURON LOST ITS experience at quarterback when Mario Gracia graduated after the 1972 season, and will go with an untested senior, Tim Hinojosa. Tim is the younger brother of Jamie Hinojosa, last year's All-State runningback for the Chiefs who also graduated in the spring.

"Tim is capable of doing the job and we have all the confidence in the world in him," Rossow said.

Halfback Dave Durham anchors an offensive backfield laden with experienced seniors, a backfield Rossow will be depending on heavily this year.

Jim Pidgeon, Al Detler, Mike Sovodash and Jeff Hessler are senior holdovers on the defensive line and join Bill Parent, Jake Craanen, Rich VanDecarr, Bill Grover, Brad Booth and Ron Suemnick as line stalwarts.

"I'M CONFIDENT that with these players we are going to better our record of a year ago," said Rossow, "and I'm extra happy because we have an able crew of underclassmen ready to step into any of the positions if we should need them."

Huron skidded to a 3-5 mark in the league last year which was won by powerful Tecumseh, and went 4-5 overall.

The Chiefs will have their hands full this season, as Tecumseh has a large number of returnees from last year's title squad. Monroe Catholic Central and Groose Ile figure to be title contenders also.

Huron launches its schedule Friday, Sept. 14, on the road against non-league rival Milan.

Hockey team seeks players

Pee Wee hockey players (ages 10-12) are needed for the Westland Super Hawk team.

The team belongs to an independent league, meaning boys from any area city may join. Practice for Superior Hawk begins Sept. 5 at 8 p.m. at the Plymouth Ice Arena with another sessions Sept. 8 from 4:30-5:30 p.m. at the Sportsland Arena in Westland.

For information about the team, call John Morton at 538-4952 or Ken Murray at KE 3-3164.

Prep rivals team-up

Michigan State's top two football quarterbacks, Charlie Baggett and Tyrone Willingham, played against each other as preps in North Carolina — Baggett at Fayetteville Smith and Willingham at Jacksonville.

Howes, Aeros to play exhibitions in Detroit

DETROIT — Gordie Howe, destined to reopen his hockey career in Houston this fall, will return to Detroit "where everything started" for two exhibition games in October.

Playing alongside their dad, who made hockey history in a quarter century on the ice as a Detroit Red Wing, will be sons Mark and Marty. All three were signed earlier this year by the Houston Aeros of the World Hockey Association.

"I said to them (the Aeros) it would be nice if we could play in Detroit," Howe said, revealing he had a choice of where to play. "...I'd like to say thanks for all the kindness the Detroit fans have shown me."

The two games are part of an eight-game tour. Other games will be in New York, Greensboro, N.C., Winnipeg, Toronto and St. Paul, Minn. The Oct. 8 game is against the Minnesota Fighting Saints and the next day the Aeros will meet the Los Angeles Sharks.

Howe, 45, said he recently passed a physical with no problems and has lost 20 pounds on his way to his playing weight of 205.

"Once I get in condition I don't think I'll have any trouble," Howe said. "My only concern was my health. But I passed a physical 100 per cent. My wrist doesn't bother me and my legs feel strong."

Howe signed for $1 million over a four-year period. He is scheduled to play only the first year and retire to administrative duties for the final three, although he said he may play a second year.

"I'd like to play as long as I can...and as long as it's fun," he said.

His sons will get $100,000 apiece for their four-year performances.

The games will be at Cobo Hall in downtown Detroit.

every game last year and is the first black quarterback to start a game in the school's 95-year football history.

"Yeah, I think he's the best quarterback in the conference. I thought he was last year," said Schembechler, the second leading college coach in the nation. He has a .772 percentage with a record of 78-23-3 in 10 years, including six at Miami of Ohio.

Yet if anything happens to Franklin, Schembechler has three other lettered quarterbacks of high caliber, plus an excellent prospect in Mark Elzinga.

There's a good possibility freshmen, who played virtually no part in U-M's varsity program last year, will play this season "primarily at split end, linebacker, middle guard in analyzing the strengths and weaknesses of the Maize and Blue. "If we have a problem it's in the offensive line from tackle to tackle, and defensively.

"If we sustain injuries we're not too deep there. Otherwise we've got a pretty good team."

Ed Shuttlesworth and Bob Thornbladh may be the best one-two punch at fullback in the conference. There is a bevy of fine tailbacks, too, including speedster Gil Chapman (moved from split receiver), bruising Chuck Heater, two-year letterman Harry Banks, and soph prospect Gordon Bell.

All-American prospect Dave Gallagher at tackle anchors a defensive line which is missing three 1972 starters. The defensive backfield, headed by junior Dave Brown, may be the best in the nation.

Tackle Jim Coode is top man on the offensive line. Sophomores Bob Wood and Ron Dudzik will challenge junior Mike Lantry for placekicking chores.

Tradition favors Spartans

EAST LANSING, Mich. — It's close, but tradition is on the side of Denny Stolz to achieve a Michigan State football victory against Northwestern Sept. 15 in his first game as Spartan head coach.

That is, if one considers what State teams have done in first games for 15 previous new head coaches. Under those circumstances, MSU won eight times and lost seven for a winning percentage of .533.

Ex-Michigan State football players John Polonchek and Rollie Dotsch are now assistant coaches with the Green Bay Packers under one-time MSU grid aide Dan Devine.

"You mean to tell me that you didn't know that there was cheating in these derbies before the Gronen kid got caught?" he asked.

"Well, I remember when I first got involved in the soap box contests and that was way back in 1935," said O'Reilly, whose column "Inside Auto Racing" appears in a score of magazines. "Back in them days the races I would say were pretty honest, but as the methods of building these cars became better and more sophisticated, then those who had the engineering acuity moved in.

"And you see what happened at Akron, didn't you?" he asked.

WHAT HAPPENED was a 14-year-old youth, James Gronen, got his uncle, Robert Lange, to install a battery-operated magnet in his derby car and won the nationals. The cheating, thanks to an x-ray machine, was later discovered by the officials and Gronen was disqualified.

The winner said his uncle, Robert Lange, told him it was okay to install the mechanism because "the Derby rules were always violated anyway."

"It really wasn't the x-ray machine that foiled the winner," related O'Reilly, "one of the officials noted that every time the Gronen car competed it would 'sort of jump' at the starting line. This would give the driver an edge, though a slim one, but apparently enough to win.

"Do you know how close some of those races are - they're photo finishes.

"Well, anyway, that last race must have really been something because, apparently, the battery was run down and had not been replaced, so it barely reacted to the 'magnetic nose'.

"I'm glad thing came to light because it shows that there is a serious need for revamping the entire contest. It also goes to show to what extent some people will go to win."

"O'REILLY, has covered the Indianapolis "500" since the late forties.

He has witnessed many changes at the classic race and said "the track is one of the major improvements over the years."

"The track was almost all brick in those early days," related the 60-year-old veteran writer, "and the turns made of asphalt. So when the cars hit the straightaways the driver said the vehicles used to shake so bad that they would actually move a foot."

Speed, of course, has been the difference over the years. In 1947, Detroit's Mauri Rose won the race with a speed of 116 miles per hour, while in 1972 Mark Donohue, in a Roger Pensky car, finished first at 162.92.

But speed may not be the name of the game at future "500" meets.

"THE DRIVERS want changes and some of those changes include taking the wings off to cut down the speed. Almost everyone, except Bobby Unser, wants to slow down.

But wouldn't that be defeating the purpose of the races?

"Speed isn't the important thing here, it's competition," argues O'Reilly. "I believe fans want to see the competition and not how fast a driver is going.

But I thought racing fans thrived upon the maudlin, they possess morbid curiosity and patronize such races for the thrills and being near death?

"Not really," said O'Reilly, "if you have ever been to one of these races you'd find out when such a tragedy does occur, the fans are almost equally effected. They don't want to see anyone hurt, believe me."

Thanks for setting us straight.

USDA eyes regulation for lids on glass jars

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has proposed a change in regulations to require the lids of glass jars containing meat and poultry products be designed to prevent the possibility of any dirt or insects getting into the jar.

Officials of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) said numerous consumer complaints have been received concerning the quick-twist, screw-on, and snap-on-type lids on containers of meat food products.

Officials said that because of the space that exists between the inner edge of the lid's rim and the container itself, dirt and insects are able to collect inside the lip of the jar lid. When the jar is opened and the vacuum seal is broken, the in-rushing air may carry the dirt or insects into the jar.

Under the proposal, container lids must be designed so that foreign matter cannot get to the inner part of the lid. This can be done by eliminating the space between the lid and the container, or by placing a seal over that space.

Comments on the proposal must be filed in duplicate by Oct. 1 with the Hearing Clerk, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Persons wishing to be heard orally should submit their requests promptly to Scientific Services, Scientific and Technical Services, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Easter Sunday always comes before March 22 and never later than April 25.

For allergic-plagued people Misery arrives

Hay fever season for millions of allergic people means misery.

While trees, grasses, and weeds all have windborne pollen, the overwhelming majority of people with hay fever are sensitive to one special pollen — ragweed — which flourishes in most parts of the country from mid-summer to late fall.

Any person may react to more than one pollen. An individual's sneezing season may start in early spring, when tree pollen is airborne, and stretch until fall when the first frost kills the pollens.

SOMEONE sensitive to dust or animal dander or other airborne material may suffer all year long.

The symptoms of so-called hay fever are repeated and prolonged sneezing spells accompanied by a stuffy nose and itching eyes. Though the symptoms are annoying and cause discomfort, the disease itself is not dangerous.

And once the offending substance is identified, the doctor can give specific desensitizing injections to control the allergic reaction.

However, untreated hay fever, year after year can cause chronic sinusitis — inflammation of the sinus cavities — can result. Growths in the nose, nasal polyps, may occur.

Are we being too greedy?

We want to sell you every car you'll ever buy. If that sounds greedy, look at it this way: in order to get your business, we have to offer you more. So we offer you more car, more warranty, more of everything for a lower cost. That way we figure you come back again and again.

If you think we're greedy, look at our prices. Then look at everybody else's. Especially during this...
